

Goodland and Rule, Leisering And Sager High

Alderman McGillan Is Eliminated in Mayor Race
6,100 CAST VOTES

Two Ballots Separate Candidates for 6th Ward Supervisor

Appleton voters yesterday nominated Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and Albert C. Rule, a former mayor, to compete for the office of mayor and Edward E. Sager, 620 E. North street, and Dorothea Leisering, deputy city clerk, to compete for the city clerk's job in the April 2 election.

Mayor Goodland more than doubled his opponents' totals, polling 3,242 votes against 1,660 for Rule and 1,216 for Alderman Lawrence McGillan, the third candidate, who was eliminated.

In the race for city clerk, Sager led in most wards and piled up a total of 2,282 votes compared to 1,225 for Miss Leisering who will be on the ticket in the April election. Finishing third and fourth respectively were William H. Falatich with 671 votes and Armin B. Scheurle, with 562 votes.

Late afternoon voting brought the primary vote total to 6,185 after a check of polling places at noon yesterday indicated a comparatively light vote. This figure compares with 5,013 in the primary election two years ago.

5 Ward Primaries
Primary races for aldermanic posts were run in only five wards, all other wards having only two candidates who automatically were nominated. Following are the results of the city council races: The first two named are the nominees: Sixth ward, Harvey C. Kuttner 242, Alderman Peter DeLan 210, Clarence Schroeder 144. Eighth ward, Alderman Henry Wichmann 153, Joseph Schumler 76, Russell Walsh 43, Ronald N. Schomisch 38. Tenth ward, Robert Roemer 225, Alderman E. P. Grignon 162, Eugene Dachtel 52.

McGillan Eliminated
The fight for the office place on the Apple ticket was a little more close, with Rule, a former mayor and assessor and veteran of many races for mayor, edging out McGillan by 444 votes. In the race between Rule and McGillan, Rule carried 10 of the city's wards while McGillan was ahead in the remaining eight. McGillan carried his own ward, the Seventeenth, against Rule, along with the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Sixteenth and Eighteenth.

The mayor's heaviest vote was in the Sixth ward where he received 300 votes while Rule's highest record was 205 votes which he received in the Twelfth ward. The Twelfth ward also gave McGillan his strongest support, 144 votes. The nominations for city clerk were never in doubt as the first wards began to report about 8 o'clock last night. Sager led with 113 against 43 for Miss Leisering in Turn to page 12 col. 3

Alas, Poor Yorick

Authorities disagree on the origin of the word "ham" as applied to corny actors. Some say the term may be a contraction of "Hamlet," which of course is every aspiring actor's favorite role. Others say it comes from "ham-fat," in reference to the grease paint used by actors. Post-Crescent Want Ads could never be called "hams" in any sense of the word. They play their parts (getting results) with the finesse of the Barrymores. They actually "wow" 'em, and never fail to make a "hit" with everyone who uses them.

Wagner Lashes at Proposed Changes In U. S. Labor Act

Declares They Would be 'Concrete Weapon for Oppression'

Washington —(P)— Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) champion of the labor board, declared in a senate speech today that amendments proposed by the Smith committee would turn the national labor relations act into "a delusive remedy for the worker and a concrete weapon for the oppression of labor."

Wagner, who sponsored the law in the senate, said he was ready to support any "sound" changes proposed by others and was seeking himself to advance suggestions which would "lead to a still better national labor policy."

But he expressed blanket opposition to the Smith amendments and set forth eight "conclusions" about them in explanation of his position.

Outlines Opposition
Summarizing his opposition to the Smith proposals, Wagner asserted: 1. The Smith committee has failed to develop "any substantial facts to refute the overwhelming weight of the evidence that the labor act has promoted industrial peace and preserved industrial freedom."

2. Greater public understanding and judicial clarification have made the labor act "more helpful to business men today than when it was enacted," and "radical and inconsequential tampering" with it will result in "grave uncertainty until the courts get through interpreting the new law."

3. The amendments "would more than repeal the labor act; they would make it a delusive remedy for the worker and a concrete weapon for the oppression of labor."

4. Proposals for substantive changes "would not only remove the provisions designed to redress labor's economic inequality, but moreover would place upon labor's right to seek legal redress unique limitations never applied to any other group."

World Hamper Law
The amendments "would hamper administration of the law and prove 'a blessing to those anxious to disobey the law'."

5. The administrative defects revealed by the Smith committee inquiry constitute "almost entirely a matter of personnel administration" and would be "multiplied by the proposed amendments."

6. The amendments are "providing a strategic point for the enemies of the labor act."

7. The act "and all who believe in it are now faced by a new threat as menacing as any which they have ever overcome in the past" and "the friends of industrial democracy must again rally to repel this latest danger."

Board Doesn't Think Fountain At High School Is Beautiful, Orders WPA to Take It Away

The WPA built the fountain and now the WPA is going to take it down again. This was all decided at the board of education meeting last night at Morgan school, when members voted to dismantle the fountain in front of the new senior high school and cover the regretful incident with a flower bed.

Seymour Gmeiner, president of the board, declared that the concrete monument had been erected without the board's knowledge any way, that it wasn't particularly decorative, and that its downfall could be made part of the general WPA landscaping project at the high school, which will be resumed later this year.

Board members indicated last night that they never thought the fountain was handsome and that the sooner it was ripped up and down and apart and the broken pieces hauled away out of sight, the better. Their attitude was shared by a great many other people who have visited the new high school and on their way to the main entrance have been forced to detour around the surrealistic piece of masonry planted in the middle of the sidewalk.

One mother reports that her son, on the first day of school, survived remarked, "That chunk of cement isn't worth anything."

Its design has been known to confuse certain earnest townspeople who take pride in their public buildings and want to understand all about them. One man is said to have come away asking "Why the watering trough on the lawn?" and another thought it was a game show.

Stockholm —(P)— The newspaper Tidningen said today that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, minister without portfolio in the German government, was being sent to Stockholm on a special mission.

Wounds Her Child's Foster Mother and Probation Officer
Chicago —(P)— A young mother, embittered by the loss of custody of her child, shot and seriously wounded the child's foster mother and slightly wounded a probation officer while in a corridor of the juvenile court building today.

Mrs. Aino Orgo Tossavainen, 26, the mother, was seized by Police-man Joseph Healy, who witnessed the affray. He said she fired a pistol inside her muff and fired three times into Mrs. W. W. Buchanan's back.

A bullet superficially wounded Miss Irene Kavin, chief deputy probation officer of the juvenile court, who was standing with Mrs. Buchanan, the foster mother, and Mrs. Tossavainen.

Finland Yields to Drastic Russian Peace Terms; 2 Ministers Quit in Protest

Widespread Gains For Soviet Russia In Pact Ending War

Moscow —(P)— Soviet Russia gained broad territorial, economic and military footholds in Finland today with a treaty ending her costly 105-day war in a fashion which the Kremlin regards as the greatest defeat of the British in a century.

The undeclared war's conclusion was looked upon at the Soviet seat of government as a "splendid contribution to world peace."

The treaty's terms indicate that Russia has achieved her long-sought security for Leningrad from assault by any power by land or sea over Finnish soil or waters.

Viipuri, the Finnish city which goes to Russia under the treaty, has been called the key to Leningrad's defense since Peter the Great founded Leningrad as St. Petersburg.

The price paid by the Russians in three and one-half months of fighting undoubtedly was a heavy one, but it was pointed out that the Soviet Union was a rich country, able and willing to pay well for its gains.

Anti-Lynch Bill Given Approval Of Subcommittee

Washington —(P)— A senate judiciary subcommittee approved the controversial anti-lynching bill today.

Chairman Van Nuys (D-Ind.) said the report would be made to the full judiciary committee Monday. He predicted the bill would be reported favorably to the senate a week later.

Senator Connally (D-Texas), who cast the lone dissenting vote in the subcommittee, conceded the measure would reach the senate calendar but said senators from southern states would "resist its passage with all the endurance and fortitude of which they are capable."

The bill, which has been beaten several times by senate filibusters, already has passed the house. It would make it a felony for a state or local peace officer to fail to use "all diligent efforts" to prevent an arrested person from a lynch mob. Three or more persons would constitute a mob.

In addition, the political sub-division in which a lynching occurred would be liable for civil damages up to $10,000 to a lynch victim or to his next of kin if he were injured fatally.

Subcommittee members who voted for the bill in person or by proxy were Van Nuys, McCarran (D-Nev.), Neely (D-W. Va.), Austin (R-Vt.) and Wiley (R-Wis.).

Signs Confession He Killed Hermit

Washington, Wis. —(P)— Walter Roy Nelson, 24-year-old WPA worker of Iron River, Wis., signed a confession that he robbed and killed William Melser, eccentric Iron River hermit whose body was found last summer. Sheriff Hjalmar Frostman announced today.

The sheriff said Nelson confessed he "waylaid" Melser last April and took $553 from a money sack the man carried on his person.

Melser's body was not discovered until Aug. 19, when William Ferguson, a berry picker, saw a hand protruding from a mound of earth beneath the 88-year-old hermit's used. The condition of the body prevented authorities from determining definitely whether Melser had been shot or stabbed. Nelson's story threw no light on this detail.

The sheriff added that another man had been arrested several days ago and also was being questioned in connection with the slaying.

Chamberlain Says London Was Ready To Help Finland

Debate on 'Whole Conduct of the War'

Berne, Switzerland —(P)— The Swiss, in the words of the newspaper Basler Nachrichten, "learned with consternation" today of the Russian Finnish settlement.

Many newspapers asserted that the treaty was "forced" on the Finns.

London —(P)— Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today that "it always has been understood that it was for the Finnish government to decide the course of action they considered to be to their interests in the light of all available knowledge."

Chamberlain said in describing last night's Moscow peace in the Russian-Finnish war:

"As I informed the house on Monday, we had made preparations to throw the full weight of all available resources into the scales on hearing that this was in accordance with the desires of the Finnish government."

A demand for a formal debate on Britain's "whole conduct of the war" came from Leslie Hore-Belisha, recently dismissed war minister, as he made a bitter attack on the government in the house of commons.

Hore-Belisha, whose ouster Jan. 5 never was fully explained but who is known to have advocated a dispatch of a British expeditionary force to Finland before he left office, asserted that British refusal to supply more help was based on "a pure technicality."

Prime Minister Chamberlain refused to say immediately whether he would allow the requested full dress debate.

Hore-Belisha entered today's discussion after Chamberlain had praised Finnish resistance and both labor and liberal leaders joined in expressing admiration for the Finns and deploring what they called another triumph for aggression.

Of the Finns Chamberlain said: "Of their decision they may be assured that the people in this country are united in sympathy for the Finns."

Shoots Elderly Couple and Self Cripple Kills Pair as They Try to Protect Granddaughter

Chicago —(P)— A crippled youth committed suicide late yesterday after slaying an elderly couple who intervened when he attempted to ravish their granddaughter.

The youth was Howard Larimer, 18, a senior in the Morrill school for crippled children, where he had been regarded as a brilliant student.

His victims were Hugh J. Welch, 72, and his wife, Mary 70. The slayings occurred in their south side apartment.

Bernadette Welch, 17, victim of the attempted attack, and her sister, Mary Ann, 16, were hysterical for several hours after the slayings.

Troops to Start Retreat Friday to New Frontiers; Diet Still Must Ratify Treaty in 10 Days

Helsinki —(P)— Weary Finland, lacking weapons and skeptical of foreign offers of help, ended her bitter three-and-one-half-months struggle against Soviet Russia today by yielding more soil and economic and military independence than demanded before the war.

At 11 a. m. (3 a. m., C.S.T.), the dogged, courageous Finnish army stopped fighting, and a gloomy peace settled over the battlefields, from the corpse-piled Karelian isthmus to icy Lapland.

Beginning Friday, the Finnish troops will retreat at the rate of seven kilometers (about 4.5 miles) a day to narrowed frontiers fixed by the treaty signed at Moscow last night.

The treaty still was subject to formal ratification by the Finnish parliament. Ratification documents are to be exchanged in Moscow within ten days of yesterday's signing.

It was announced officially this afternoon that War Minister Juho Niuukanen and Minister of Education Uno Hannula had resigned from the government because they opposed accepting the Russian terms.

Foreign Minister Vaino Tanner disclosed the terms to the Finnish people in a broadcast today, declaring Finland was forced to capitulate.

Mannerheim to Speak
The head of the Finnish army, Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, was scheduled to speak to the nation tonight and President Kyosti Kalho tomorrow.

Defense Union Talk Is Revived In Scandinavia

Sweden Wants Assurance Of Guarantees in Event of New War

Copenhagen —(P)— Scandinavia received the Finnish peace today with relief that the war was over, sadness at Finland's capitulation, and with forebodings for the future.

Talk of a northern defense union in which the little countries would band together for protection against more powerful neighbors was brought out into the open with a rush.

Early editorial comment emphasized that Finland had made enormous sacrifices in the interests of peace in the north.

In Sweden especially there was indication that popular opinion, shocked at the severity of the terms imposed upon Finland, would insist that some guarantee be given that Finland will not have to fight alone in the event of a new attack.

Norway too was concerned. The Oslo newspaper Dagbladet said "the peace conditions made it impossible for Finland to resist eventual new Soviet attacks."

Border Threatened
"With a railway to be built to Kemi (on the Gulf of Bothnia) the Soviet army can at any moment cut Finland in two and get to the Swedish border," said the paper.

"The whole south of Finland will be defenseless by losing the Mannerheim line fortifications and in the Russian occupation of Hanko." This paper observed that "this is a very hard peace, but under the present conditions it was the best solution."

"If Finland had continued the war, Germany might have stepped in and taken the whole of Finland before help had arrived from the western powers," Dagbladet said.

565,000 Casualties In Soviet-Finn War

Copenhagen —(P)— Foreign military observers today estimated that the Finnish-Russian war had cost at least 565,000 casualties, half of them dead.

These sources divided the losses this way: Russia—Approximately 250,000 dead and 250,000 wounded. Finland—30,000 dead and 35,000 wounded.

The abnormally high percentage of war dead was attributed to the bitter cold weather in which most of the war was fought. Many deaths were from freezing after wounds which otherwise would not have been fatal.

One Danish newspaper correspondent today reported Finnish casualties on the Karelian isthmus front alone were 30,000, including 2,000 young Finnish officers.

Finland lost most of her Mannerheim defense line which for months halted the Russian war machine and then slowed up the red army advance. All of Lake Ladoga also was yielded.

Finland was forced to yield because she lacked arms and "had no faith in the promises of others" to aid in the unequal struggle against a foe 50 times her size, Tanner declared.

Great Britain and France yesterday offered to send 50,000 troops to Finland, but Tanner said, "the only possible route was through Norway and Sweden, who refused to let the troops through. This refusal proved an unconquerable obstacle."

"Thus Finland was left alone to face an enemy of superior numbers." He highly praised the conduct of Finland's stubborn defender, saying their feats were "astounding and beyond expectations," but reinforcements were lacking.

The public—which reacted to the peace with numb bewilderment—also was lashed by Tanner.

"The home front acted beautifully and the people's morale was Turn to page 12 col. 8

Heil Points to Fund Reductions Of His Regime

Says Appropriation Reduced by $3,779,000 Since He Took Office

Milwaukee — (P) — Governor Heil, discussing his administration, told the Milwaukee Rotary club yesterday that the administration's emergency budget had reduced the $75,000,000 appropriations of the state legislature by $3,779,000.

The governor said that the net appropriations totalled $72,000,000 for the current two-year period, of which amount $41,068,000 was allocated for elementary and high school aids, charitable and pension aids, agricultural aids, relief and miscellaneous aids.

"Economy in government primarily involves and necessitates a survey of conditions through the many departments of state government to properly determine the elimination of unnecessary expenses, whether it be in purchases or employment, without impairing the efficiency and functions of the several departments," the governor said.

"I am indeed happy to report to you that economies are being made in all divisions of the state service."

Cut in Pay Roll

"It will interest you to know that when this administration took office in the month of January, 1939, there were 13,353 employees, and a total monthly pay roll of $1,625,000. One year later, in January, 1940, there were 12,514 employees and a total monthly pay roll of $1,556,000. This reflects a decrease of 839 employees and a decrease of about $69,000 in pay roll for the month, or about $690,000 a year. It is reasonably expected that the economy program will bring about further savings which will become evident."

The governor said one of the most effective reorganizations of the administration was that of the motor vehicle department. He claimed savings of $250,000 annually by the change and added "it is not improbable that when this department is completely reorganized, that even this expense ($1,000,000 a year) will be further curtailed."

He said charitable and penal institutions were operating on a reduced budget, that special counsel fees had been slashed, and that liquor tax administration expense had been cut.

Points to Economy

"It is expected," he continued, "that the reorganizations of the tax commission, securities division, state board of public welfare, department of agriculture, employment relations board, university board of regents, and the department of research, will not only serve the people of the state with greater efficiency, but will aid in bringing to the people of our state economy in government."

The governor digressed from his manuscript frequently. Discussing liquor tax collections, he said: "We have taken the boys out of the night clubs and put them to work collecting taxes." He asserted that married women would be dropped from the state pay roll if their husbands also were state employees. He declared he was 100 per cent for the University of Wisconsin but wanted "the president and the professors to earn their money." He said there would be no special session of the legislature to balance the budget. He praised the state labor board, maintaining that it had brought industrial peace at an increase of $4,000,000 in paychecks to workmen last year.

"If I could run the state as I run the Heil company, I could save half of the money it takes to run it," he sighed. "Let me tell you, this job of governor is not the greatest snap in the world."

Draft Roosevelt Groundwork Laid

New Hampshire Elects 12 Delegates Committed To President

Manchester, N. H. — (P) — Official groundwork for a possible "draft-Roosevelt" movement at the Democratic national convention was laid today in New Hampshire as the nation's first 1940 primary election gave the chief executive a full slate of delegates pledged to a third term.

Eight delegates at large and four district delegates, all committed to the president's re-nomination, were elected with the backing of a majority of the state's Democratic leaders, and under New Hampshire law, must vote for him at the convention until he gives them a formal release.

The rank and file of the Democratic party ignored protests against a third term and passed up alternative standard-bearers, with the result that three candidates pledged to Postmaster General James A. Farley, one to Vice President Garner, and three pledged rank and file behind the Roosevelt slate.

The granite state Republicans picked an unpledged delegation in accord with Senator Styles Bridges' aspirations for the G.O.P. presidential nomination, after a nip-and-tuck, five-candidate contest over the choice of four delegates at large.

Bridges, Senator Charles W. Tobey, and former United States Senator George H. Moses, a veteran of five national conventions dating back to 1908, captured three of the places.

With returns in from all but 14 of the state's 294 precincts, former Governor Huntley Spaulding was leading Governor Francis P. Murphy, 24,238 votes to 23,674 for the fourth place.

Hopes for Early Adjournment Dim

Administration Would Like It but Chances Are Poor

Washington — (P) — Administration hopes for an early adjournment of congress are being swatted down by the senate, which has had much experience in that kind of swatting. The protracted dispute over the Hatch act, the bogging of the economy drive in the plowed ground of the nation's farm lands, and the revival of tax talk—all these are signs that the half-dozen or more presidential candidates in congress expect to keep a good sounding-board handy until near convention time.

Like guests who drop in for an after-dinner chat and spend the week-end, congress often talks of going home early but rarely does. And, what with its known allergy to taxes in an election year, its talk in that direction is more in the nature of a grab for the brake rod than any real effort to put steam behind a new revenue measure.

In the past century of political history, congress has adjourned only three times before June. In 1904, when Teddy Roosevelt was in the White House and pre-destined to renomination, it went home in April.

Twice it has adjourned in May. The first time was when William Howard Taft was being groomed for the succession to Roosevelt in 1908. The other was in 1928 when Calvin Coolidge was about to step out for Herbert Hoover.

Man and Wife Found Dead in Parked Car

Benton Harbor, Mich. — (P) — The bodies of Edward Wallace, 23, of Denver, and his wife, Pearl, 19, were found today in an automobile parked in a driveway at Mary's House of David.

Each body bore a bullet wound. They were married a year ago but a few weeks ago Mrs. Wallace came here to stay with her grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Wolf, who belongs to the colony established here by Mary Purnell.

Mrs. Wallace had been working in a confectionery store here. Her husband met her there last night and they left together.

Police said she apparently refused to return to Denver with Wallace and the shooting followed.

Hoan Nominated For His Eighth Successive Term

Veteran Socialist Gets 75,305 Votes, Carl Ziedler 50,516

Milwaukee — (P) — Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, veteran Socialist incumbent seeking election to his eighth successive term, and youthful Carl Ziedler, former assistant city attorney, were nominated by wide margins over six other mayoral aspirants in the municipal primary yesterday.

They will oppose each other in the April 2 election.

Complete returns in the city's 435 precincts gave Hoan 75,305 votes to 50,516 for Ziedler. Attorney Earl D. Lillydahl, real estate man and member of a pioneer Milwaukee family, trailed far behind in third place with 18,362.

Ziedler and Lillydahl had been expected to form the chief opposition to Hoan, who has served as Milwaukee's mayor continuously since 1916.

The vote polled by the remainder of the field:

Richard F. Lehmann, who was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor six years ago, 6,383; Dr. Frank J. Schultz, former coroner 5,943; Otto Werkmeister, unsuccessful mayoral candidate in the two previous elections, 1,712; Frank J. Selz, a tavernkeeper in his first campaign, 1,198; Fred Bassett Blair, member of the Communist party's state executive committee, 1,161.

Joseph J. Krueger, incumbent, and Theodore Dammann, former secretary of state, were nominated in the race for city treasurer with 68,139 and 71,626 votes respectively. Former state senator Harold V. Schoenecker, the third candidate, polled 15,855. Dammann is a member of the farmer-labor-Progressive Federation.

Walter J. Mattison, incumbent, and former Alderman Paul Gauer were nominated for city attorney with 68,607 and 48,800 votes. Attorney Gerald Paradowski, a candidate for public office for the first time, received 19,251 votes.

The election was conducted on a "non-partisan" basis.

Milwaukee — (P) — Heavy voting, despite bad weather, marked the municipal primaries in Milwaukee suburbs yesterday.

Mayor Delbert Miller of West Allis, was re-nominated and will be opposed in the April 2 election by Paul J. East, a high school teacher. Miller received 5,276 votes. East, 3,562.

Mayor Charles F. Cassebaum of Cudahy, in winning re-nomination, polled 1,356 votes. 156 more than Alderman Vincent Totka, his nearest rival.

Charles J. Plotz, former mayor of South Milwaukee, received 1,649 votes and ran ahead of Mayor Walter J. McCreehy. The latter received 787.

In a four-cornered race, Mayor Alfred C. Loose of Wauwatosa was re-nominated, and will be opposed by Eric E. Hagedorn. Loose polled 3,987 votes, Hagedorn 1,266.

Allies Miss Opportunity; Pact Makes Finland Virtual Dependency of Soviet Russia

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York — (P) — The treaty which tiny Finland has signed with a pistol at her head is an "honorable peace," as no one can gainsay—for her brave defense of freedom in the face of overwhelming odds would render any terms honorable so far as she is concerned.

Finland need have no fear the world will think aught that she has made a magnificent fight to the utmost limit of her ability.

Having said that, however, it must be recorded that the pact is a very terrible one for the Finns.

It strips them of strategic territories and renders them impotent in the matter of defense.

To all intents it puts armed Bolshevik sentries inside the Finnish home.

In short, it gives the reds a domination which makes the little republic virtually a dependency of Moscow. Forcible penetration of communism would be a logical development.

Friday Deadline For Tax Returns

The deadline for filing state income tax returns without penalty is Friday. Employees at the county branch office of the Green Bay division office have been busy the last 10 days giving assistance to persons in making out their returns.

The following individuals must file a state return: single persons whose net income is $800 or more; married persons whose combined net income is $1,600 or more; and all persons having total receipts of $5,000 or more, regardless of the amount of net income.

These requirements apply regardless of whether the person supports dependent persons. To determine the net income or total receipts, the taxpayer must include fair value of maintenance received in addition to salary.

Miss Opportunity
The threat of the spread of communism, which Sweden and Norway have been fearing, now is very near to them. It is nearer to the rest of Europe, for that matter.

The Anglo-French allies have missed an opportunity of great strategic importance by not intervening on Finland's side and thus opening up a new war front which could be used against not only Russia but Germany. This would have been a serious blow to Herr Hitler, and by the same token the Russo-Finnish peace which he has engineered represents a big victory for him over the allies.

I don't say that this failure means disaster for the allies. It certainly doesn't do that. But it does mean

Court Clarifies Legal Status of Municipal Utility

Decision in New London Case Regarded as Important Precedent

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—State experts, studying the decision of the state supreme court yesterday holding the New London electric utility commission liable for the payment of damages arising out of the accidental death of a boy who picked up a live wire in the city, decided that the decision clarifies the legal responsibilities of municipal governments engaged in commercial enterprises.

The court yesterday upset a judgment of Judge Herman Severson of the Waupaca county circuit court which had set aside a jury verdict for damages claimed by the parents of Byron Christian, 14 year old New London boy who was killed when he came into contact with a fallen wire from the New London utility's street lighting system.

In at least one previous decision, it was pointed out, involving the city of Menasha several decades ago, the Wisconsin court had held that the part of a municipal electric system serving the street lighting facilities is an instrumentality of government, and therefore not ordinarily liable for damages in accidents.

Judge Severson had based his dismissal of the jury verdict on that premise, arguing that it was the only question at issue in the suit in the circuit court.

Makes New Ruling
The supreme court, however, in a long and explanatory opinion written by Justice Edward Fairchild, denied Judge Severson's interpretation, and ruled that the proprietary and governmental aspects of the municipal utility's operations are indivisible.

"The city of New London", Fairchild wrote in an opinion in which his colleagues assented, "is operating a plant for the production, transmission and delivery of light and power. The legislature has recognized this activity as a public utility (Sec. 196.01). This activity of the municipality places it in the commercial world for we find no distinction between a utility owned by a corporation, a company, or an individual and a utility owned by a village or city which in any way would exempt it from being classified as a proprietary affair."

"This city-operated power plant is not under the protection of the doctrine which exonerates a city from liability for the negligence of its agents where the acts are done in the performance of governmental functions," the opinion said.

"Here the city owns that it is a utility, but not that it is to preserve the governmental functions of pro-

CHURCH PROVIDES BUS SERVICE FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL PUPILS

A unique service which Trinity English Lutheran church began the first of the year and which has been proving successful is provided by the Sunday school bus, shown above against the background of the church, which makes two trips every Sunday morning to bring children from outlying sections of the city to the church. The bus carries about 75 children every Sunday morning, making one trip around the central, northwest, and southwest parts of the city, and a second trip across the river and around the southeast sections. The service was begun with the idea of carrying on during the winter months, but if it seems worth while it will be continued through the rest of the year. The Rev. C. H. Zeidler is pastor of the church and Carl Koehl is superintendent of the Sunday school. (Post-Crescent Photo) tion insofar as it lights its own streets.

No Division
"But what occasion is there for such sub-division of its acknowledged business—that of furnishing its customers with light and power," the court asked.

"The city is operating as a public utility and the fact that it is one of its own customers does not create a division of its plant into proprietary and governmental departments."

To make damages and recovery depend, the court added "upon what we happened to fall would be to ignore the true relation of the utility to the public, and to overlook the rather obvious fact that the hazard of the business is the same, so far as the individual is concerned, no matter who owns the utility."

Kaukauna — Coach Clifford H. Kemp put one of his best rounded boxing squads on view last night, the team rounding out an 8 1/2 to 11 victory over St. Norbert's High school of De Pere. The locals took the first three matches and were never in danger.
Victory in the first round paced the Kaws, with several promising newcomers making their debuts in one bout. Kaukauna lost when Jack Byrne, taking part in his first bout, was decisively out by L. Quinlan, the Kaw boxer showed promise of becoming one of the team's mainstays. A third round rally built up a 30 to 20 margin for the St. Norbert lad.
Jack Roberts also was in the ring for the first time, scored a second round knockdown which figured heavily in his win over W. Barone in the opening match. Roberts built up a referee's point margin of 30 to 25.

Mitchler Wins
William Mitchell, undefeated last year, got off to a fine start by winning L. Shea of the invaders Mitchell, whom Kaukauna's Phil Zwick has called one of the best high school boxers he has seen, stopped on early attack by his opponent to end up on the long end of another 30 to 25 count.
Captain Gordon Hennes gained margins in the last two rounds after dropping the first to J. Ganon. The crowd of more than 500 seemed to think J. Byrne deserved the decision over Quinlan, but the referee's card showed 30 to 28 for his opponent.
Tom Velle's longer reach enabled him to outpoint the crouching C. Peters, 30 to 28. The hard hitting Don Keil had an easy time with E. Joyce, punning him all over the ring to win by 30 to 24.

Last Round Rally
George Steffen's last round rally got him the decision over J. Faulb. The veteran George Reichelt had an easy time with E. Hall, taking all three rounds, while Robert Burns, at a height disadvantage and behind with a minute to go, sent J. Clark to the canvas and ended with a strong attack to get the nod.
Phelan Fernal, a freshman, drew his bout with W. Hare, finishing strong to overcome his opponent's margin in the early rounds. Paul Feldt was narrowly outpointed by K. Hofmeister in the 148 pound class. Ivan Schuszka of Kaukauna and Steeno staged an exhibition bout.

High School Stars Join Brewer Team

Co-Captains Will Play in Amateur Tournament Tonight

Kaukauna — Kaukauna Mellow Brew cagers will be strengthened by the addition of Don Biselx and Joe Bloch, co-captains on this year's high school squad, as the five opens the athletic council's amateur tournament at 7 o'clock tonight against Strope's of Appleton. Other games pit Elkhart against Plymouth at 8 o'clock and Oshkosh Pollnaws against Turnow's Tavern of Appleton at 9 o'clock.

Others who will see action for the Brews are Ves Hanby, second high scorer in the regular city league season, Ed and Charles Bloch, Paul Koch and Floyd Driesen.
Kaukauna's other entry in the tournament, which will show 16 of the best teams in this section of the state, is the Merchants, city champions. The Merchants open play at 7:30 Friday evening against Little Chute A. A. On the Merchant squad are George Hatchell, one of the high point men in the recent Little Chute tourney, Bud Boocky, city high scorer, Jim Lang, John and George Grogan, Jerry Vils Art Koehne and Jerome Parman.
Turnow's Tavern of Appleton will show a strong team tonight, with a lineup including Cliff Burton, a former Oshkosh All-Star player, and Rollie Winters, who played at Idaho State.

situation in which they find themselves and admiration for the courage with which they have maintained for so long a struggle against overwhelming odds." The house cheered this statement loudly.

Furnished Supplies
Chamberlain said the British minister in Helsinki had been informed officially this morning of the peace treaty.

He said that throughout the struggle the British government, with France, had furnished Finland with large quantities of raw materials and supplies.

"This epic story will ever be recounted in the chronicles of their own history and will remain alive in the memory of all people," Chamberlain continued.

Chamberlain said the British government had made plain "their readiness to give all possible help to the Finns in their gallant struggle against aggression."

Clement R. Attlee, laborite leader, following Chamberlain, declared that "we all are agreed in admiration for the Finns in their struggle, and while we are relieved that the slaughter has been stopped we deeply regret the success of aggression."

Would Offer Help
As Britain had been willing to assist the Finns in defending themselves against aggression, said Attlee, "we should render them all the assistance we can in order to repair the damages of this unprovoked attack on their people."

Britain's refusal to give large scale aid to Finland until the Finns appealed for such help was bitterly attacked by Leslie Hore-Belisha.

"Is it not a pity, in relation to the magnitude of these events, and of their far-reaching character, to plead as an excuse for inaction a pure technicality?" Hore-Belisha asked.

Great Britain and France, weighing the effects of the peace, prepared themselves for an intensification of their own war and for a possible combined Nazi-Soviet diplomatic offensive against allied interests in the Balkans.

Moscow's announcement of a treaty with Finland, ostensibly freeing Russia's resources to support the war machine of her economic ally, may mean a Nazi offensive in the west.

Bid To Rumania
London and Paris received reports from Bucharest that Germany and Russia were planning to offer Rumania territorial guarantees in exchange for trade concessions.

British and French officials declined comment, pending action of the Finnish diet (parliament) on the reported peace treaty but the settlement, coming on the heels of the alleged purported willingness to intervene in Finland, had its effect in both capitals.

Some observers tried to portray Scandinavia as "the villain of the piece" through refusal to allow allied reinforcements to cross its territory into Finland. This refusal weakened the allied promise of aid, it was pointed out.

"The obstinate refusal of the Scandinavian countries to allow the passage of military aid was decisive," said the London Daily Herald.

Offer Too Late
The authoritative British press association, however, quoted most English papers as agreeing that the offer to aid Finland was made too late.

That the Russian-Finnish armistice would kill any allied plans of allied military operations through Scandinavia against Germany's flank or Russia was evident in London. Only yesterday in Paris, Premier Daladier told the chamber of deputies that 50,000 allied troops were momentarily ready to go to Finland—if she called for help.

Now there was the prospect that Russia, with her campaign against Finland over, would be free to supply 300 waiting German divisions with the materials for an offensive against the Maginot line.

The British and French press regarded the war in Finland as finished business. The "harsh" and "one-sided" terms, said the British Press association, apparently were forced upon the Finnish delegates.

THE CENSUS

It would have been surprising were we to take a census without the very hubbub that prevails.

Man is a forgetful animal in relation to his own experience as well as his written history. Shouting down the divorce question which is criticized as highly objectionable in 1940 he overlooks that the same question has been put by the census takers in this country for just 90 years.

The questions having to do with each individual's income and similar matters are nowhere near as personal and penetrating as the questions every income tax-payer answers every year. It was Wendell Willkie who recently remarked:

"I have been examined so frequently by federal commissions, the SEC, government boards, and so on, that I don't think anyone can ask me a question—pertinent, impertinent, personal or otherwise—that I haven't already answered."

While there is some politics in the hectic criticisms of census questions there is more of ornery, mulish human nature. From the time that David sent out Joab to count the people "from Beersheba to Dan" people have chased census takers off their front porches as they might strike out against wasps. In the early history of this republic many farmers got down their old flintlocks from above the door to give census takers a correct version of their hatred against any intrusion into their privacy.

But objectors have been quite indifferent to the manifest advantages of the census. They overlook the fact that the information thus gathered probably constitutes the most important social and economic data which the country has in addition to forming the basis of representation in legislative halls which is our correction every decade of the injustices that would result from changes in population to the end that the majority may rule. There is hardly a business or industry that is not benefited by the carefully collected information gleaned by the census taker. The fact that some of the questions asked may not always appear necessary is of little consequence. Suppose there is some overreaching or a bit of high inquisitiveness why must we rush at our government because of such trivial affairs when we know it has undertaken to obey a constitutional behest and the questions asked will not tip over the house anyway?

Far more personal was the question of 30 years ago taken in an industrial census that asked how many petticoats each woman wore. Even if today every housewife was queried upon whether twin beds were in use she might reflect that the information would be of great value to the manufacturers of sheets, pillows, mattresses, springs and bedside tables instead of just a mere matter of nosiness.

And when those who never made an income tax return are questioned about their earnings instead of becoming annoyed they should be suffused with a glowing warmth to observe their government so curious about their finances.

Perhaps they are about to be admitted to the exclusive society, a kind of nobility here in America, which pays income taxes.

FOR SAFEKEEPING

When the new British liner, the Queen Elizabeth, largest ship afloat, moved up the Hudson river on the afternoon tide, the story of the most daring and spectacular maiden voyage in maritime history had been written—with a happy ending.

The British were not alone in rejoicing that their great vessel had successfully dodged the perils of the war on the seas. No more than the Germans alone were jubilant when their crack liner, the Bremen, reached home port safely after running the same kind of hidden and floating dangers.

A ship does not become great nor lose greatness by the flag it flies. A liner belongs only to the seas it travels. The pride of its bow, the foaming of its wake can never be confined by nationalities. When the Queen Elizabeth came into New York harbor, triumphant over undersea destroyers, its prow cutting the water as neatly as a yacht's, for all its 85,000 tons, the thought was not so much that this was a British ship which had eluded German submarines, but that here was a queen of the seas safe from war's senseless destruction. Even in its drab, grey war paint, its streamlined royalty was apparent to the crowds that peopled the docks to watch its arrival.

To be sure the captain and his crew who brought the gigantic $28,000,000 vessel safely across deserve the acclaim they will receive when they return home. So did the captain of the Bremen and his crew for their adventurous voyage across the north Atlantic to Russia and then to Germany.

Another of the tragic inconsistencies of war is that it causes men to attempt the destruction of their crowning achievements among which certainly is the fashioning of such ships as these. It is sad commentary that his greatest effort in this line was compelled to make her maiden voyage in fearful darkness, but a happy postscript is that she did it safely.

THAT TENURE VOTE

The public school teachers of Wisconsin, who many years ago organized the Wisconsin Education association as one of the thousand and one pressure groups clamoring for public attention and support, are preparing for another campaign.

One of the triumphs of that organization in the 1937 legislative session was its successful sponsorship of the teachers' tenure law. Now it is fighting to retain that law.

We have heard all the arguments on that statute often. It has some ardent defenders, and some strong critics. Supporters can argue, and with effect, that the law was enacted for the sole purpose of giving a great group of public employees in the schools the same measure of civil service security which other public employees have enjoyed for years. It is simply a measure to protect teachers from the actions of capricious school boards.

Opponents can, and are, saying that it is a means of retaining deadwood on teaching faculties, of denying the rights of the school boards chosen as the people's representatives to exercise their proper powers of hiring and firing, of giving to a special class of the citizenry special privileges which the taxpayers themselves cannot attain.

Without entering into the arguments for and against teachers' tenure, we hasten to endorse the complaint of the teachers that the advisory referendum vote on the issue in April will not be fair or representative.

The 1939 legislature, which showed a splendid courage on some questions, and abysmal cowardice on others, conveniently ducked the teacher tenure issue by putting it to an advisory popular vote. The April vote will not be binding. Teachers, however, justifiably fear that if the election shows a majority against repeal, the 1941 legislature will lose no time in following out the electorate's demand.

So they protest with heat that the election will not be fairly conducted, and we agree with them.

They are being put to an unfair disadvantage because the tenure law does not apply in large sections of the state, while all the people of the state will be voting for or against its repeal.

While such a protest may be an admission by the teachers' organization that it is not very sure of popular support for its dearly cherished law, it is only fair to emphasize that the 1939 legislature exempted 6000 rural school districts from the provisions of the tenure statute. Therefore the residents of that large part of the state will be voting on an issue which has no relation to their own interests whatever. The city of Milwaukee with a large proportion of the voting strength of the state, has its own tenure system, and so its residents will also be voting on something which does not concern them immediately.

As the Wisconsin Education Journal points out, other state-wide advisory referenda have been on questions of state-wide import, such as the blue law repeal, the state prohibition law, old age pensions, etc. Therefore the unrepresentative character of the April vote, whatever the decision, cannot be denied, and the next legislature will do well to make allowances for it.

SILLY AND TRAGIC

Reporting on what was described as the first "large-scale contact" between German and British troops, the German high command listed casualties as 16 British prisoners and 20 dead, and one Nazi dead.

In this war, thus far, a total casualty list of 37 makes a "large-scale contact." Everyone, of course, is glad that more are not being killed and dreads the day when they may be. But, the point is, of what good is this sniping? Neither side is gaining an inch; the land war remains a stalemate. Yet, both sides continue to peck away at human life, killing a man here and one there, a brother on this side, a husband on the other.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

PINE WALLS

There is nothing more beautiful than four walls. Four plain walls of knotted pine. Gazing upon them, one recalls The silence, the cathedral hells Of forests bearing God's own sign.

There is nothing more beautiful than the print of bare pine walls. The rosy tint Of clouds above the wood, the hint Of a bright day in azure dawn.

Give me a wall of soft pine wood, And I shall see such pictures there: The forest in the solitude, The forest's ancient brotherhood, The tall trees teaching me a prayer!

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—It's a committee secret, but those sweeping National Labor Relations Act amendments recommended by the House investigators came within a hair's breadth of being ditched in the investigating committee itself.

Representative Charles A. Halleck of Indiana balked at approving them up to the last minute, finally gave in only after Chairman Howard Smith, Virginia anti-unionite who authored them, agreed to drop one designed to curb the freedom to strike.

This was one of two pet amendments vigorously advocated by Smith in the closed-door deliberations of the committee. The other would strip the NLRB of all enforcement powers, and transform it from a potent regulatory agency into a quasi-judicial body passing only on complaints submitted to it by an independent administrator, who would be the real boss of the labor law.

The two New Dealers on the committee, Representatives Abe Murdock of Utah and Arthur Healey of Mass., flatly refused to have anything to do with Smith's bill, so he had to have Halleck's vote to get anywhere. Otherwise the New Dealers would have had a 3-to-2 majority and there would have been no amendments.

So Smith reluctantly backed down, but only after a stormy row with Halleck.

The young Hoosier Republican bluntly told Smith he considered his bill "half-baked" and biased, and urged that nothing be done until later in the session after the committee had completed its probe. Smith insisted on immediate action, on the ground that an early adjournment might stymie the legislation.

"I'd rather take that risk," shot back Halleck, "than rush in with amendments that are half-baked. These amendments you've drafted are too drastic. They'll have to be toned down and that will take time. I'm not anti-labor and I don't want the workers of my state to think I would interfere with their rights to bargain collectively."

"The committee met this morning to take action on this report," retorted Smith, "and I insist that it do so."

"I'll give you my answer tomorrow," replied Halleck, picking up his papers and walking toward the door.

"Hey, wait a minute," yelled Smith, "Where are you going? You can't do this."

"What do you mean, I can't do this?" snapped Halleck, wheeling angrily.

"I'm chairman of this committee," thundered Smith, "and I insist on staying in session until we finish with this report. Tomorrow will be too late."

"What's all the hurry? Why can't we wait?"

"Well," spluttered Smith, "because I promised the newspaper boys I'd give them the amendments this morning."

Everyone, including Halleck and Smith, broke into laughter at this profound explanation. It eased the tension, and in a calmer vein, with Smith agreeing to junk the anti-strike amendment, Halleck finally consented to go along with him and Representative Harry Routhon of Ohio, the other GOP member, on the remainder of the bill.

Note—Murdock and Healey were willing to favor an amendment separating the judicial and administrative powers of the NLRB, but when Smith refused to include a provision permitting an appeal to the board from decisions of the administrator, they turned thumbs down on any change.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

All the Republican presidential candidates are privately wooing Joe Pew, multi-millionaire boss of Pennsylvania, who will control about 100 votes at the convention, but publicly they are keeping him at arm's length because he is political poison with the labor vote. . . . For a red-hot New Dealer, scrappy Maury Maverick is chalking up a strange record as mayor of San Antonio. He has balanced the city's budget, reduced taxes and put an end to labor strife. . . . One state where Senator Vandenberg is making little headway with Republican leaders is Indiana. Reason is that in 1938 he angered them by making a speech criticizing them for running a candidate against Democratic Senator Fred Van Nuys, who was on the White House purge list. Van Nuys' GOP opponent came within an ace of winning the election. . . . Third-term note: Of the senate's 96 members, 26 have served three terms or more and two others, Connally of Texas and Townsend of Delaware, are running for their third term this year. Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina, who again, as serving his sixth term. In the house more than half the members, 244, have been in office three terms or more.

DOUBT VICTORY

The White House inner circle scored not one but two victories in the bitter behind-the-scenes battle over the selection of trustees for the billion-dollar Associated Gas & Electric system.

First triumph of the New Dealers was in blocking the appointment of former Treasury Under Secretary John Hanes and having named instead, against strong opposition from powerful Wall Street interests, three pro-holding company act liberals, Willard Thorp, Dennis J. Driscoll and Walter M. Pollack.

The second triumph arises out of the first. By installing these three allies at the head of the tremendous weapon in its new campaign to enforce the so-called "death sentence" provision of the holding company act, which requires utilities to simplify ("integrate") their financial structures along regional lines.

The SEC faces rough going anyway, but it would be a lot tougher if a hostile trustee was running the mighty AG&E, which under its original operators was a violent foe of federal regulation. Now, however, the SEC is assured that the utility will cooperate to act as a model for corporate simplification. This will be invaluable in bringing indirect pressure on other top-heavy utilities to fall in line.

Note: Driscoll's appointment must be bitter irony to the former AG&E rulers. He was the Pennsylvania congressman who forced the phony telegrams sent by AG&E demanding defeat of the holding company act. In retaliation, AG&E went into his district at the next election, and through the expenditure of a lot of money, defeated him. But he was made chairman of the Pennsylvania Public Utility commission, which in turn made him a strong candidate for his new job as trustee.

CAUGHT IN THE CROSSFIRE

Both Britain and Germany recognize that international law in wartime is only vaguely defined, and that its meaning is twisted to the exigencies of both neutrals and belligerents. Norway, Sweden and Denmark were able to live through the last war without becoming involved only because they were resigned to being knocked about a bit by both sides. They hope that the same formula will preserve their peace again. If they come through this crucial era with their independence intact, they may see the wisdom of pooling both their sovereignty and their resources for purposes of national defense.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER
Washington—Uncle Sam is conducting a treasure hunt—the most thorough in the country's history.

It's a scientific search for seven minerals essential in the making of war weapons. They are: manganese, tin, nickel, chromium, tungsten, antimony and mercury.

The Army and Navy Munitions Board lists all seven as "strategic minerals"—that is, if this country went to war, all would have to be obtained, in whole or in part, from sources outside the United States.

A four year investigation of ore deposits is being made by experts of the Geological Survey and the Bureau of Mines. Ore samples are being analyzed in government laboratories, and the Bureau of Mines is doing research on metallurgical methods.

There have been no startling discoveries since the war got under way last fall. However, Bureau of Mines engineers say there is hope that potential resources of three metals—chromium, tungsten and antimony—will be found adequate for wartime needs. The outlook isn't so bright, however, for manganese or tin. Most of the excavation work thus far has been in the west and southwest.

What We Have—And Haven't
Here's the situation on the seven sought-for metals:

MANGANESE—Probably the most critical mineral deficiency. Little U. S. ore is of a type suitable for making ferro-manganese, the alloy used in steel manufacture. Needed for airplanes, other weapons and precision machinery. Chief hope is future development of methods to improve the considerable quantity of low grade manganese ores.

TIN—Second most serious mineral shortage problem. Domestic production less than 1-10 of 1 percent of consumption. Some native undeveloped resources. Most of our supply comes from Asia. Used in gun metals, solders, bearings, and for protective coating on steel "tin" cans.

NICKEL—Hardly any domestic resources but Canada has about 90 percent of world supply. Essential in toughening steel and manufacture of armor plate. Nickel steel used in large caliber rifles, marine shafting, autos and bridge construction.

CHROMIUM—Current production insignificant but considerable undeveloped chrome ore which could be used in emergency, provided methods are worked out in advance. Essential for rust-resistant steels. Used in armor plate, projectiles, high-speed cutting tools.

TUNGSTEN—Domestic production, about half of nation's consumption, could be stepped up in an emergency. Ores widespread in U. S., but commercial production confined to 11 western states. Essential in certain tool steels and incandescent lamps. Our biggest imports from China and British Malaya.

ANTIMONY—Most of our supplies come from a Texas smelter which treats Mexican ores. U. S. resources in this country very limited, but proximity to Mexico helps our strategic position. Used in bullets and shrapnel, and alloyed with lead for emergency batteries.

MERCURY—U. S. imports about half of its required supplies. Self-sufficiency might be attained for brief emergency period under stimulation of high prices. Used for many industrial activities. Several substitutes, but for military use mercury is considered safest and most reliable.

Garden Discussed as Asset to Community

At Waupaca Meeting

Waupaca—Mrs. Willys Holmes told the members of the Garden club Monday afternoon how a good garden can be an asset to a community. The meeting was at the home of Mrs. O. E. Hanson on Grand street. The value of a garden cannot be estimated to the fullest extent, she said. It gives joy to those passing through and may even be beneficial in the sale of real estate. She stressed particularly, the importance of the good example set by even one person taking pride in the beauty of his garden for it is possible for one person to be responsible for the betterment of the whole community.

The club will have charge of the sale of Wild Life Federation stamps under the direction of Mrs. James Carew who will be assisted by Mrs. Allen Scott and Mrs. Henry Smith. National Wild Life Restoration week opens March 17 and continues through March 23.

Hereafter the club will open its meetings at 2 o'clock rather than at 3 o'clock, and the next meeting will be held in the library club rooms with the Iola Garden club in charge of the program. Their subject will be "Plans for Early Spring Window Gardens." The committee on arrangements includes Mrs. O. E. Hanson and Mrs. V. O. Parrish. Tea will be served by Mesdames James Carew, Henry Smith, George Law, George Klake and Miss Sana Madison.

ON THE OTHER HAND DON'T BE TOO SURPRISED

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Madison—As informed Republicans are well aware, a matter which gets much discussion in meetings of leaders nowadays is "What to do with Heil?"

There is a feeling among many who m Heil has alienated for one reason or another that he should not be allowed to get a convention endorsement and therefore the advantage of a closed primary, automatically.

Others aren't sure of public opinion, recognizing the generally unfavorable press comment, in Wisconsin and in the nation, on the record of the businessman-governor. Still others opine that it would be a healthy development to have a contest for the nomination, and in that way force the governor to prove the popular support he is fond of claiming whenever he meets with party men.

A POLL?

But in an up-state district which is eagerly courted by the state Republican organization for its populous counties with Republican tendencies, a group of practical-minded organization politicians have another idea.

They propose to adopt Dr. Gallup's method of determining public opinion in order to satisfy themselves how Heil stands with the people of Wisconsin. By polling several thousand, or more, people in representative sections of the state, say in early summer, the party will be able to get a pretty conclusive diagram of the public attitude.

That scheme will soon be put before some of the highest leaders of the Republican party for consideration. In the meantime it is reported that there are some important people in the up-state district who are backing the suggestion.

ALFONSI

A central Wisconsin editor of Progressive leanings recently informally canvassed his friends on the candidacy of Paul R. Alfonsi of Fence for the Progressive nomination for governor, and he reports opinion predominantly unfavorable.

Others of Alfonsi's supporters report these main difficulties: he belongs to a minority nationality group, his home county is one of the smallest in the state in voting power, he is a Catholic, he is extremely young, he is associated with some of the more pronounced left-wing groups in the state.

CONVENTION

The Young Progressive group, recently reorganized upon instructions from headquarters, reports progress in its membership drive and is now preparing for a state convention in early summer, to be held in Stevens Point or Portage. The latter location may be chosen in order to give a boost to the candidacy of its president, Tom Fairchild, son of the supreme court justice, for district attorney of Columbia county.

CATLIN

The Catlin family, father and son, have cut quite a figure in state affairs during the last year. Mark, Jr., as a leader of the Republican majority in the assembly last year, was a stalwart supporter of the Hell administration. His father has made things lively on the conservation commission, to which he was appointed by Heil, by championing various irregularities in the conduct of the affairs of the big conservation department. Now it develops that Mark Sr. is wearying of his minority battling on the commis-

Personal Health Talks

EVERY CHILD SHOULD KNOW

A ranchman living in the rim of the dustbowl constructed a six acre dam or "tank" to serve as a reservoir, and later dug an eleven foot hole beside it to guard against the dam water overflowing into a nearby well.

One day the seven year old son of the ranchman asked permission to go wading in the shallow edge of the tank and his mother, unaware that the deep hole had been dug, gave permission and went on with her work.

Presently the five-year-old daughter screamed "Ellis fell in!" The boy was in the eleven foot hole. Mother started to run straight toward the place but realized she could reach the spot more quickly from another side, so she ran back and thru many rods of shallow water until she reached the hole. The boy was floating just under the surface, head down. Mother had never been able to swim, but she plunged in to the deep hole.

Perhaps the air in her clothing buoyed her up. Anyway she didn't sink, altho she swallowed considerable dam water. She managed to grab hold of the boy, and feebly slapping water with her left hand but made little progress. She had sent the little girl for daddy before she plunged into the hole. After what seemed a long time she touched the edge of the hole, dragged the boy out into shallow water. He was limp and not breathing. Dry ground was many yards away. She sat in the water, feet folded under her, pulled the boy across her lap so that his face would be out of the water and his arms stretched out above his head, and in that awkward position began applying prone-pressure resuscitation, as she had learned by memorizing the directions given in this column.

Right here, altho of course I know how the story is going to end, and maybe a few old timers know too, for this isn't the first time we have told the story, I like to take time out to calm down a bit. I always have to blow my nose and dry the left cheek—I can keep the right under control, as a rule. All right, let's see how the little mother made out. Did daddy arrive in time? No, daddy was never again mentioned in the script.

"I don't know how well I did in that awkward position," mother wrote, "but suddenly he breathed and then began to cry exactly as he did when he was born. Twenty hours afterward he was as well and active as any seven year old child could be expected to be. . . . I thought you might be glad to know that a mother feels that to you and to God she owes the life of her eldest son. New testament miracles seem absolutely true to me now. They didn't before."

It would be fair, I think, to give mother at least four-fifths of the credit, and as to the remaining fifth I'm willing to toss for it. Mother mentioned me first, so I assume the privilege of choosing the method of settlement.

While mother was struggling up the hole she thought "Dr. Brady has written that even if a person has been submerged an hour they can possibly be saved by artificial respiration."

Honestly I can't recall having said an hour, but that is not important. The important thing is that the idea helped to sustain the mother thru that critical moment—minutes, while his son isn't eager to return to the legislature. There is a good chance, in fact, that he will give up his assembly job to run for district attorney in Outagamie county, according to reports received in Madison.

ute, five minutes, no matter how long it may have been—and that's all I need to know. I'm as happy as the I had been at hand myself to fish mother and child out of the hole and resuscitate the child.

I have a booklet on "Resuscitation" which gives such simple instructions for applying artificial respiration by the prone-pressure method, the correct Schafer method and not the unwarrantably modified method taught by the Red Cross and numerous allied organizations, that any child can learn how to render this life-saving service in an emergency.

For a copy send a regular size 11-cent-stamped envelope bearing your address. Even if you haven't time or interest to study the method now, keep the booklet in your pocket, emergency kit or in the family medicine cupboard, so that you will know where to look for it when you want it.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, March 13, 1930

Mayor A. C. Rule was almost 200 votes behind John Goodland and A. C. Bosser, city attorney, ran three votes behind F. F. Wheeler in the previous day's primary election. Sufficient names were written in for Herman Holtermann to nominate him for city treasurer against Fred E. Bachman and for F. P. Young to place him on the April 1 ticket as a candidate for city assessor against George Reister.

The arrival of 500 baby chicks at the Appleton post office for delivery to a farmer on route 6, Appleton, was a sure sign spring had arrived. A memorial gateway commemorating the service and sacrifice of veterans of all wars was the gift of Colonel Frank J. Schneller, Neenah, to Lawrence college. The memorial was to be erected at Whiting Athletic field.

25 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, March 17, 1915

Belligerent troops had carried two advanced German positions. The Germans were bombarding Nienport with 16-inch howitzers. Several buildings were demolished. The British steamers Atlanta and Fingal were torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine. Russian advances against Langsargen in East Prussia were repulsed.

Fire completely destroyed a barn owned by Bernard Kassel, a quarter of a mile from Child's Corners near Waverly, about 7 o'clock the previous night. The total loss, was about $3,000.

Survey Indicates Third Term Chances are Unfavorable for FDR, Though Trend Turns Up

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion
Princeton N. J.—One of the most persistent political questions before the public is whether Franklin D. Roosevelt will run for a third term and, if he does run, what his chances are of winning.

The American Institute of Public Opinion began measuring third term sentiment the week after the 1936 election and since that time has conducted more than 27 complete nationwide surveys on the third term, approaching the subject from every possible point of view.

An analysis of all these studies, including the most recent, indicates that even though Roosevelt is more popular as President today than he was in 1936, sentiment against a third term is so great that he would have a hard time being elected at the present time.

While 64 per cent of voters polled by the Institute approve of Roosevelt as President at this point in his second term, only 47 per cent are for a third term in a study completed this week. This compares with 46 per cent last month.

Translated in terms of the vote cast in 1936 (45,000,000), the Institute's studies show that whereas Roosevelt has the following and support as President today of approximately 28,500,000 voters, at least 7,500,000 of these voters say they would desert him at the present time on the basis of their feeling against a third term.

The qualification "at the present time" is important, for the studies indicate that events have a great impact on public sentiment, particularly in connection with the third term. Prior to the outbreak of war in Europe, sentiment for a third term averaged about 33 per cent, which meant the odds were overwhelmingly against the President's re-election. Since the war, however, there has been a rising trend, today's vote of 47 per cent comparing with 40 per cent last August, and 33 per cent last May.

Since the war brought substantial changes, it is clear that one main key to sentiment favorable to a third term between now and summer will be the course of events in Europe. The other factor will be the candidate whom the Republicans nominate.

Past studies indicate that of the two, events in Europe are likely to play the more important part in influencing opinion on the particular issue. A military offensive which arouses the public's emotion and fear, and focuses attention on foreign policy will undoubtedly increase Roosevelt's third term chances, particularly since his foreign policy has been found widely popular. On the other hand, if public attention is fixed largely on domestic issues, third term sentiment may revert to what it was before the foreign crisis began.

Campaign Expenses Must be Reported

Candidates for nomination in the primary election must file reports of their campaign expenditures at the city clerk's office by Saturday. The first reports, filed last week revealed candidates spent $217 up to that time. Reports must be filed even though no money was spent in campaign work.

His Tax Money's in the BANK...

Salesman Bill says he's lucky his territory is mostly along the Orange Line. He can leave his car at home for "the Missus" to use. What's more, he's got it figured out that riding the ROAD CRUISERS saves him enough to cover his state income tax. Here's how: He averages about 80 miles a week, and counting off 2 weeks for vacation, he travels 4,000 miles a year. Salesmen know car operating costs—and Bill says 3¢ a mile would barely cover gasoline, oil and tire expense. But by riding the Orange Line he cuts travel costs from $120 to $72. Saves $48—more than enough to pay income tax on March 15.

Britains for Sending Arms, but Not Troops For Relief of Sweden

With Soviet forces penetrating deeper and deeper into Finland, a question which stirs the Allies as well as the European neutral bloc is what shall be done if Russia attacks Sweden.

A poll of British opinion conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion shows a majority of British voters in favor of sending arms and materials to Sweden, but opposed to sending troops. The results were:

"If Sweden is attacked, would you approve or disapprove of Britain's sending arms and war materials to Sweden?"
Approve 51%
Disapprove 31%
No Opinion 18%

"If Sweden is attacked, would you approve or disapprove of sending troops to help Sweden?"

Twin Cities Will Entertain State Bowling Tourneys

Women Will Compete at Neenah Next Year; Catholic Men at Menasha

Menasha — The Twin Cities will be host to two state bowling tournaments during 1941. They are the Women's State tournament which has been assigned to Neenah and the Catholic Men's tournament which will be held at Menasha.

The Women's State tournament will be divided between the Muench alleys at Neenah and the Hendy alleys at Menasha. It will run from the first weekend in March into April.

Over 400 teams were entered in the 1940 Women's State tournament which is in progress now at La-Crosse. Menasha has entered 10 teams in the three divisions as well as leagues in the singles and doubles. They will bowl April 6. Menasha was host to the women's tournament in 1931.

The Catholic Men's tournament, which originated in Menasha four years ago, will be run at the Hendy alleys next year. It is scheduled to start in February and will end just before the women's tournament opens. The tournament has grown steadily and the entry list totaled over 180 teams this year at Green Bay.

May Get Another — The Twin Cities also have entered a bid for the 1942 state men's tournament and are favored to get it. They entertained the tournament in 1938. Over 1,800 teams are entered in the tournament this year. Menasha has entered 13 teams, 250 bowlers and 61 leagues in the singles in the state tournament at Madison. They are scheduled to roll their lines the weekend of March 30.

Nine teams of the Hendy Recreation league have entered. The teams and their captains are Jesse Lumber, M. Jeeke; Henry Recreation, H. Asmus; Mellow Brew, E. Zelinski; Meadowview, J. Knorr; Bert and Ben, J. Oberweiser; Gold Leaf, W. H. Pierce; Clothes Shop, E. Hela; Drucks Electric, S. Zielinski; and Rippl Grocers, R. G. Kellnhauser.

Van; Bayers Bar of the Germania league, captained by A. Lipske; and Monotony, champions of the Banta Men's league, captained by P. Kaminski.

Decision on Bids For Wooden Ware Land Is Deferred

County Board Returns Proposals to Committee For Further Study

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau — Action on the disposal of certain Menasha Wooden Ware company property, acquired by Winnebago county through tax delinquency, was deferred until the Wednesday session of the county board when the supervisors voted to refer the bids back to the tax delinquent committee for further consultation.

The bids which have been offered for the property are: John Strange Paper company, $12,000 for the entire property and buildings west of the office building, running along the Fox river and the canal, the buildings to be left as now standing; Ben Weidman, 241 W. Fourth street, who offered $4,000 for the paint shop building and adjacent land; the A-Abbey Wrecking company of Chicago which entered a bid of $2,800 to be allowed to wreck and remove the buildings if it could be given the salvage from these buildings; and Dave Zimmerman, Chilston, who offered $1,305 for the salvage from the saw mill and dry kiln buildings.

The county was given a quit claim deed to the property on Dec. 28, 1939, after serving notice on the company of intention to take a tax deed to the land. Bober Fears 3rd Term Would Result in 'Divided House'

Neenah — A third term for Roosevelt would stir up so much animosity that we would have a house divided against itself and be divided not times for a nation to be divided, Dr. M. M. Bober, professor at Lawrence college told members of the Women's Tuesday club in the Neenah Public library club room yesterday afternoon as he discussed possible presidential candidates and service elements in the country.

In considering the democratic possibilities, Dr. Bober listed James Farley, Vice President Garner, Cordell Hull and Senator Wheeler. "James Farley? No, first because he is a Catholic; a greater Catholic than he tried it and failed; the United States is not ready to consider a Catholic as president, and second, I do not think he is good enough to do it. He is a decent politician, has good sense, Garner? No, he wasn't eight years ago and as far as I am concerned he is not alright now. He is shrewd, clever, a politician; but he is not big enough and we need big men."

"Cordell Hull? I wouldn't object. He is a good man, honest, able, stubborn; has ideals and is high minded."

"Senator Wheeler of Montana? I wouldn't object. He is a decent, free-minded person; not a whirlwind but he has sense and a good heart."

"There is a dearth of great men on both sides and it is tragic that this day when America needs someone big that we don't have a great figure."

"Let's consider the Republicans, Thomas Dewey?

Some Changes in Wagner Act May Eliminate Bad Feeling

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—In the present discussion over revising the Wagner National Labor Relations act, the existing legislation has been brought into the controversy with two strikes on it because of the over-zealous activities of some labor board employees and because of the difficulties created by the labor split between the A. F. of L. and the C.I.O.

The most common phrase used in condemning the act itself is that it is "one-sided," that it "combines prosecutor, judge and jury in one body."

It is well, as the discussion begins, to recall what William M. Leiserson, the newest member of the labor board, and one generally regarded as not only an expert in the field but as being fair and open-minded, had to say.

In his testimony before the special house investigating committee some weeks ago, Mr. Leiserson cautioned against jumping to the conclusion that the Wagner act is one-sided and unfair. He said that everything that is prohibited to employers under the Wagner act is prohibited to them also by the railway labor law, which has a notable record of success.

In fact, he said the railway labor law goes further than the Wagner act in that it prohibits employers from petitioning for elections among employees. The Wagner act leaves this question open. For some time the labor board refused to permit employers to petition for elections, but has now proposed would give employers the right specifically to petition for elections.

There seems no good reason for refusing to make this change, particularly since employers are sometimes caught between a cross-fire of A. F. of L. and C.I.O. groups and should have the right to force a showdown before they are whipsawed into financial ruin between hostile groups of employees.

Leiserson Says Employer Rights Are Protected

In reviewing the technical procedure under the present act, Mr. Leiserson felt that employers' rights were given legal protection at every step and that provisions for court review were adequate. They are, he said, the same procedures that congress has provided for elimination of unfair practices by railroads against shippers, for prevention of monopolistic practices, and for abolition of fraud and deceit in sale of securities and foods and drugs. In other words, the interstate commerce commission, the federal trade commission and the securities and exchange commission and numerous other administrative agencies are governed by the same kind of law that applies to the national labor relations board.

When decisions and orders of the labor board are issued, the employer may disregard them if he sees fit. The board must then go to a circuit court of appeals and submit the whole record and the papers in the case, and show the court that its decision is supported by substantial evidence. If the court upholds the board, then the employer must comply or be subject to contempt-of-court proceedings.

Committee Wants Rule On Expanding

The Smith committee felt that the law did not give the courts sufficient authority to question findings of fact by the board. The law provides that the board's findings are made conclusive upon the courts if they are supported by substantial evidence. The Smith committee majority report recommends that the law be expanded slightly. The new amendments stipulate that such findings of the board shall be conclusive "unless it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the court that the findings of fact are clearly erroneous or that the findings of fact are not supported by substantial evidence."

If certain changes of this kind will serve to eliminate the feeling among employers that the present act does not give them a fair break, nothing is lost by making them. Men like Ernest Wer who say they are for collective bargaining but who regard the Wagner act as badly constructed and evilly administered might have some of the wind taken out of their sails by changes of this kind. Then possibly steel-union organizers would be more welcome around Weirton, W. Va., and some other places, than they claim to be now.

Latin America Topic At Waupaca Meeting

Waupaca—With a map of Latin America to show the location of the Latin American states, Mrs. Roy Luter told members of the Monday night club of the influence of immigration from Europe on these countries, from 1830 until 1913. The principal nationalities going to these states during the years mentioned were Spanish, Negro, Portuguese, Germans, Italians and French as well as Assyrians, English and North Americans. With the influence of European peoples went the influence of European capital, she said, pointing out that Great Britain has a great deal of money invested in these states as has Germany, Italy and the United States, which naturally has increased the trade with these countries.

Thirty high school girls, members of the glee club, sang two selections, "Nightfall in Granada" and "When Day Is Done," accompanied by Betty Jay at the piano. They were directed by Miss Phyllis Plahn.

On March 18 the club will observe the Golden Jubilee of the General Federation of Women's clubs; charter members and past presidents of the local club will be honored. The Waupaca club celebrated its fifteenth birthday in 1933.

Kimberly Talks On Firearms at Meeting of Club

Displays His Collection of 50 Guns for Twin City Sportsmen

Neenah — James H. Kimberly, Neenah, displayed his collection of 50 guns and talked on his hobby of collecting firearms at a meeting of the Twin City Rod and Gun club last night at the Neenah city hall auditorium.

The collection included a Johnson semi-automatic rifle, one of the few of its kind which has been turned out by the government. In the collection was practically every type of firearm from a "windjammer" to an elephant gun.

More than 100 persons attended the meeting when it was reported that the membership in the last week had been boosted to nearly 100, and plans were made to hold the April meeting in Menasha in the form of a past presidents' night.

William Dorow was appointed chairman of a committee to be organized for the purpose of constructing rabbit traps. The club granted W. Bispington permission to net carp at Lake Kilauea with a new type of seine which he said will not destroy vegetation.

The club voted to hold a field trial for dogs and Emil Schneider and Fred Bronsdon were appointed to take charge of the event. It probably will be held this spring.

It was reported at the meeting that illegal fishing was being conducted below the Menasha dam, and it was decided the authorities would be notified. S. K. Seebert, secretary, reported that March 17 will be observed as Wild Life week and that he has a supply of stamps which have been issued for the observance.

Waupaca — Arraigned before Justice S. W. Johnson Tuesday morning, Andrew Zemlock, operator of a tavern on Highway 110, one-half mile south of the village of Fremont, pleaded not guilty to keeping his tavern open after the hours set by law. Hearing has been set for 10 o'clock March 15.

Movie Land Its People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

New York, N. Y.—Dear Staff: A mild rebuke to you lads out there for blowing trumpets about Laraine Day at this latest date. If you will check back on the columns, you'll find that this young lady attracted my attention as an actress a good many months ago while she was doing her stuff in the "Dr. Kildare" series, and I said then that she was headed toward the top.

I took the time and the trouble to find out what sort of a gal Miss Day really is and her story is one that might well be credited by ambitious youngsters with talent who believe that acting is their future trade.

Here is a girl who made up her mind early in life that she wanted to be an actress. Instead of daydreaming and hoping for the best, she joined a Little Theater group in her home town of Long Beach, California. Struck by her earnestness, the coach took her in hand and worked the dickens out of Laraine until she acquired the fundamentals.

As she progressed, talent scouts sought her out and she was given several small opportunities in pictures with no great success. Did that lick her? It did not. She continued to study, act and finally direct productions for Little Theater outfits, something she still does today in her spare hours.

When she landed at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, smart grooming brought her ahead slowly but surely until now, with her success in "My Son, My Son," you fellows are ready to admit she is on the threshold of stardom.

I don't want to be tough but it seems to me that, instead of yelling for more dough all the time, you might take a tip from Miss Day. She got to the top the hard way.

WILL CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING
Residents of Manawa for the last 20 years and of that vicinity for many more years, Mr. and Mrs. Milo Sturm, above, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Thursday. Friends and relatives will help them observe the occasion at their home tomorrow night.

Manawa Pair Married for Half Century

FIFTY years ago, on March 14, 1890, two young people of the town of Little Wolf, Waupaca county, Miss Amalie Spletter and Milo Sturm, were married at a ceremony performed at Waupaca. Tomorrow evening, Mr. and Mrs. Sturm, residents of Manawa for the last 20 years, will be honored on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary by close friends and relatives at their home.

The life histories of Mr. and Mrs. Sturm are closely associated with the growth and development of Manawa. The former was born and raised on the farm now owned by Harold Frazier, located three miles north of Manawa, which was originally settled by his father, Christopher G. Sturm. It was the latter who gave Sturm's Hill, one of the early landmarks of this region, its name and the schoolhouse which graces the hill today is still identified with Sturm's Hill school.

Mr. Sturm enjoys telling about this part of the country as he first knew it. Back in 1868, when he was about five years old, the present village of Manawa consisted of nothing more than a wooden bridge over-looking the Little Wolf river near the point where Esche's mill is now located, and a few shanties. The nearest post office was at Little Wolf, three miles east of Manawa, and it was Mr. Sturm's job to walk the six miles to the Little Wolf settlement two times each week to collect the mail.

At that time Northport had a population of some 1,000 persons and was the nearest trading center for settlers residing in that territory. At various intervals, the Sturm family would make the trek to Northport by wagon and purchase supplies for themselves and their neighbors.

Both in Good Health
Mrs. Sturm was born in Germany in 1870 and came to this country with her parents 14 years later. The family lived at Sugar Bush for several years, later moving to the farm now operated by Elmer Abraham in the town of Little Wolf.

Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Sturm resided on the old homestead founded by the former's father, until 1920 when they moved to Manawa. Both are enjoying excellent health.

March Reverts to Type as Blizzard Sweeps Over City

Storm Is General in State; Traffic Slowed: Mercury at 25

Winter stamped over Appleton and vicinity today with a typical March snow and sleet storm, accompanied by blustering winds.

The Associated Press reported that the storm, which slowed highway traffic, was general throughout the state.

Following a couple days in which snow fell intermittently, the storm swept swiftly into Appleton this morning and inhabitants expected an all-day blizzard. By early afternoon, the snow and wind had subsided. It was estimated that about two inches of snow fell.

The Appleton bus station reported that the fall was not heavy enough to delay buses, but traffic on city streets was delayed somewhat. Fine drizzles of sleet this afternoon added to the traffic hazard.

The storm brought little change in temperature to the city, the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building reading 25 above at 12:30 this afternoon, for the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 27 and the lowest 20, according to the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant.

Snow fell in all parts of the state, but was heaviest in the western section. LaCrosse reported an overnight fall of between seven and nine inches.

Sleet preceded light snow in Milwaukee and at numerous points along the shore of Lake Michigan. The Milwaukee Motor club reported that roads were treacherously slippery. In the Milwaukee area there were numerous traffic mishaps. A Milwaukee couple suffered injuries in an accident near Kenosha last night. A Sheboygan boy was killed and his parents were hurt in an accident near Racine. Their car skidded, Peter Klein, 75, collapsed while shoveling snow in front of his Milwaukee home and died of a heart attack.

The weather bureau predicted considerable snow in Wisconsin today, with a light fall tonight and tomorrow. Colder weather in the eastern portion was predicted for Thursday.

Highways Treacherous

A light steady drizzle and freezing temperatures glazed streets and highways with a treacherous polish of ice and forced motor travel to a virtual standstill in parts of five middle-western states, the Associated Press reported from Chicago.

Bert Vanderwarf, head of the Chicago Motor club's touring bureau, said conditions were the worst of the winter and counseled against travel in the state.

Continued rain and freezing temperatures were in prospect, Vanderwarf said, leaving no promise of immediate relief.

The glazed area extended over all Iowa, northern Illinois from a line near Springfield north into southern Wisconsin, and northern Indiana from a line near LaFayette north into southern Michigan.

Approve Revised Floor Plans for New Courthouse

Menasha Engineering Firm to Make Survey Of Building Property

Another step toward the construction of the new county courthouse was taken by the courthouse construction committee yesterday when it approved the revised preliminary floor plans. Vigilante Guns Sold At Public Auction at Waupaca Courthouse

Waupaca — More than 250 persons attended the public auction of the rifles and guns that were sold during the regime of the vigilantes, at the courthouse Tuesday afternoon. Sheriff D. A. Campbell was the auctioneer and was assisted by County Clerk L. J. Steiger. The county realized $590.50 from the sale of 27 shotguns and 9 rifles, about one-third of the original cost. The vigilantes were organized by the bankers association of the county during 1929 when Arthur S. Eneboch was the sheriff and James Hanson the undersheriff at a time when bank robberies and holdups were rampant. Less daily occurrence with the bankers' association and the liability insurance was furnished by them, it was the sheriff who deputized doctors, lawyers, farmers, business men, for the work. Board Doesn't Think Fountain At High School Is Beautiful, Orders WPA to Take It Away er for the football team. It has even been taken as the foundation for a chimneys tower.

William Eggert, superintendent of public school custodians, was asked about the fountain at last night's board meeting. The custodians at the high school have been puzzling over the domestic pill-box ever since it was dumped onto the new high school property, it seems. Mr. Eggert replied bluntly that "It's never been in working order and nearly every time we turned on the lights there was a short somewhere."

The custodians made a sincere attempt to turn the fountain into a thing of beauty last summer. Geraniums were planted in its concrete shelves, the blossoms waving over the cement crags. A sprinkler system poured rivulets of water over the plants to give them nourishment. But comes fall and the end of all flowers, the grim gray battlements of the fountain stood out more starkly than ever.

The fountain was hooked up with the high school's water system, but the system was operated only during the fall of 1938 when the school was opened.

Impractical, Too

One of the most annoying things about the fountain, it is said, was the vault-like recesses in which the light bulbs were secured. Colored glass was anchored in cement in front of each bulb, in order to assure water-proof protection.

The high school custodians held their breath every time they turned the lights on, for fear a bulb would die. If one did, it meant they had to take a running start with a cold chisel in order to break down the glass so they could replace the bulb. They regarded that as being impractical.

Then there was the time a band of rooters for a rival football team came up with a supply of paint. They picked on the fountain, slapping red paint in it thick and heavy. The coloring had to be ground off the concrete, a tedious job.

Estimates were made at last night's meeting as to just how much the ill-fated fountain cost. One board member suggested several thousand dollars. He was promptly told that was far too high, that $850 was more like it. It was evident, though, that nobody at the meeting wanted to buy it for their school.

Superintendent Ben J. Rohan said that the board knew nothing about the fountain until it was just about finished.

The fountain was the WPA's idea, an item in the maintenance commission. The board last night voted to place public liability insurance on all schools for a 1-year period with a $10,000 to $50,000 coverage. The bid was awarded to the Appleton Insurance Board, with an annual premium of about $350.

F. V. Powell, Madison, director of the bureau of handicapped children in the state department of public instruction, discussed with the board regulations which the state bureau requires in the operation of orthopedic schools.

Superintendent Rohan explained, by use of a map, recent trends in enrollment in the various grade schools in the city. Talk centered for some time on Franklin school, the advisability of building an addition to it, and the relation of the town of Grand Chute to the general problem of school attendance. It was reported that 242 grade school children from the town of Grand Chute are attending public schools in the city.

The board looked over copies of "Futures," a booklet edited by H. H. Helble, principal of the high school, and given to each ninth grader during the spring term of school. The purpose of the booklet is to help pupils choose high school courses.

Superintendent Rohan reported that Miss Anna Sullivan, speech correction teacher, will resign at the close of the school year.

State Meeting

The superintendent reminded the board of the spring conference of Wisconsin school boards and superintendents at Milwaukee, April 12 and 13 and expressed the hope that members could attend.

A recommendation in the superintendent's report that beginning in September, the noon hour at the high school be 80 minutes instead of 90 was held up for more study by the board.

The superintendent stated that limiting the noon period to 80 minutes would "ease the problem of caring for those who remain at noon, help care for those who come back early, and provide earlier afternoon dismissals." He said he felt that the 80-minute period would be ample time for those students who go home for lunch.

Several members of the board pointed out that many students living considerable distances from the building walk home for lunch and that cutting 10 minutes off the noon period might work a hardship on them. It was decided to consider the recommendation at a later meeting.

praiseworthy," he said, under almost daily bombing attacks and other hardships of war.

The response of this public to the peace was uncertain as yet, but foreign observers took it for granted that a change in the government was imminent.

Defensively, Tanner asserted: "The surrender is not our fault—it is the fault of our being forsaken by our fellow democracies."

Despite loss through the treaty of all the Karelian isthmus, Viipuri, all the shores of Lake Ladoga, the strategic peninsula of Hanko on which Russia will put a naval base, and great chunks of land in the Arctic, Tanner said it was wisest to make peace while Finland's defenses remained "unbroken."

"What kind of peace?" Tanner asked. "A severely wounded nation is surrendering important industrial and agricultural territories."

This, said the foreign minister, creates new responsibilities and makes a new building program necessary. He called for a united nation to carry out the reconsolidation.

"We have risen from ruin before," he declared. "We have plenty of land left."

"The united front is needed just as surely during peace as war."

"There is the foundation for a new dawn for our nation in the future."

(Reuters, British news agency, quoted a dispatch from Helsinki to the French news agency, Havas, as saying that "in some Finnish circles there are fears that today may not see ratification of the treaty but a coup overthrowing the government.")

Parliament was in session last night and there were unverified reports it was debating the terms for peace.

All signs pointed to a thorough examination of the treaty by parliament. Eighty-five of the 200 seats are held by the social democratic party headed by Foreign Minister Tanner, a principal target of attack in Russian propaganda.

Tanner has headed the foreign affairs ministry in the coalition mittie report, which was adopted, provided for the asking of prices on hand rails to be placed on the stairs of public school buildings, as ordered by the state industrial commission.

Dress Rehearsal for 'June Mad' Will be Held Tonight at School

The busiest spot in Appleton High school today is the stage and its surrounding territory, for tonight marks the dress rehearsal of "June Mad" and Thursday night the public presentation. This year's senior play is a 3-act comedy centering around the problems of 15-year-old Penny, who is growing into womanhood. Miss Ruth McKeenan, head of the speech department, is directing.

The "prop" girls are busy trying to locate the necessary "formals;" the stage crew is putting the last brush strokes on the setting, the interior of the Wood home; members of the cast are clenching that "just right" inflection and gesture; the girls in the sewing classes are making a gown for Penny, a red and blue extravaganza; and the business staff is making a final drive for tickets. Curtain time has been set at 8:15 Thursday night, and the doors will open at 7:30. Balcony seats at 20 cents will be sold at the door.

Although this is the premiere performance for Appleton of "June Mad," written by the well-known Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements, the comedy is shortly to be made into a motion picture. It is typical of the stories of the problems of adolescence currently popular among the motion picture audiences. While the situations are humorous, they have a touch of poignancy which makes them real.

Penny Wood is the average high school sophomore, looking wistfully back at childhood and stepping clumsily into girlhood.

Jeanne Rauhling has the part of Penny. Others in the cast are: Donald Bohl, Tom Nolan, Celeste, Lois Schultz, Don Smith, David Bliss, Bertha Symmes, James Koss, Lisbeth Atcherson, William Mullen, Robert Wilch and Elizabeth Wood.

Business Women are Guests at Style Show

Several hundred business and professional women were guests at a style show Tuesday night at the Pettibone-Peabody company store. Invitations will be issued later to another group Sport clothes, afternoon ensembles, evening dresses, and wraps and foundation garments, were modeled, with a bridal party, as the climax. Miss Marion Ross conducted the show.

This is the Appleton Post-Crescent's 20th Anniversary Year

MERIT is the reason why 18,241 Copies of the Post-Crescent are delivered every day!

Two Post-Crescent carriers give their interpretation of how their newspaper's circulation has grown during the past 20 years, as six foot one-and-one-half-inch Norman Bauhs and five foot Ralph Stojackovic give each other a friendly "once-over."

Here are some of the Post-Crescent's 180 regular newspaper carriers. They are the connecting link between the presses and you, but this is not their story . . .

This is a report of the Post-Crescent's circulation which, as of March 2nd, 1940, stands at an all-time high of 18,241. Since most of the Post-Crescent's daily output is delivered or mailed to homes, at least 60,000 people — and probably many more than that — read this newspaper every day.

When you consider that 20 years ago, the circulation of the Post-Crescent was 7,200 — remembering that the population in this area has not increased in anything like a similar proportion — you see the importance of these figures. You also realize that, by serving more readers, the Post-Crescent has helped to integrate its territory and aided the various communities to know each other better.

There are many factors involved in this steady growth in circulation. They include a constant widening of news coverage and feature service, a constant improvement of plant, personnel and publishing technique, and a constant betterment of general service to readers and advertisers. Boil them all down and you get—

MERIT!

Not circulation "stunts." Not high-powered premium offers. Not high-pressure selling methods. Just merit.

We are as proud of this fact as we are of the figures.

Officials Worry Over Demand for Pension Increase

Treasures are in No Shape to Stand Boost To $40 Monthly

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—State and county officials were perceptibly worried this week over the prospect that organized demands will be made for the payment of increased old age pensions under terms of the liberalized 1939 old age pension law, adopted by the state legislature in compliance with federal action.

State authorities acknowledge that the new pension law clearly contemplates a change in the maximum payment from $1 a day to $40 a month. The rub, however, is that neither the state treasury, nor many county treasuries, will be able to pay such higher benefits except in isolated emergency cases.

Although there has been little comment on the pension finances of the state government from official sources, George Keith, who as the head of the division of public assistance is the state pension administrator, recently spoke quite frankly before an eastern Wisconsin group of county pension officials at Oshkosh.

For all practical purposes, Keith advised the local administrators, the $50 limit is still in effect, simply because funds on hand in the state treasury cannot be made to stretch farther than that.

Moreover, some counties are even now struggling to meet their share of the pension load, it has frequently been pointed out in the legislature and elsewhere, and Governor Heil vetoed out of the new pension law a provision for reduction of the 20 per cent local cost to 15 per cent. At least two counties have been unable to pay their 20 per cent share for several years, and have been aided by emergency disbursements from the state relief fund.

The $40 provision came into public notice a few days ago when several Milwaukee county pensioners, with the legal assistance of one of the many pension leagues, started court action to compel the county's payment of the full $40 less income allowed in the amended state law. The court dismissed the action, however, pending formal application to county pension authorities. Since that time about a dozen $40 pensioners have been granted in Milwaukee by County Judge Michael S. Sheridan.

Rising Cost of Social Security Program Hinders Tax Reduction

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—That one of the biggest obstacles in the efforts of local governments to reduce property tax levies is the rising cost of the social security program was shown again here today with the publication of figures detailing the burden of pension payments on state, local and federal governments.

It was shown that Wisconsin county governments—and thus the real estate taxpayer—are paying more than twice as much now for old age pensions as four years ago. In 1939 the localities' share of the old age pensions paid to more than 54,000 persons was $2,512,751, compared with only $1,171,697 in 1936. Total old age pensions costs during the same period increased from less than $8,000,000 to $12,141,701, of which the localities bore one-fifth, the state 30 per cent, and the federal government the remainder.

During the same four year span another element of the social security program has also grown into a heavy weight on the property tax base, the official figures reveal. From 1936 to 1939 the counties' cost for aid to dependent children rose from $1,175,710 to $2,271,373. Total costs for that part of the program rose from less than $3,000,000 four years ago to $5,208,512 in 1939. The burden on property taxes here is more direct, because last year the counties bore 42.8 per cent of the total cost of the children's aid program as compared with 32 per cent for the state, and 23 per cent for the federal government.

The number of children on the rolls grew from 10,500 in 1936 to about 14,000 in 1939, but costs rose in a greater proportion because of liberalization of benefit payments.

of the Church of Christ met Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Ames at Shiocton. Merle Nelson has returned home from Madison where he has completed a course of agriculture.

Lenten Thought For Today

Wednesday March 13. Bear ye one another's burdens... For every man shall bear his own burden. (Carry his own load—Good speed.) Read Galatians 6:1-5.

The usual translation does not indicate the shades of meaning in these two "burdens." The first "burden" is anxious weariness; the second "burden" is one's own personal task and responsibility. (Literally, a ship's cargo.)

One's own appointed task rarely breaks him, but to bear one's cares and anxieties without sustaining sympathy is dreadfully hard. The whole business of life is changed when our mutual cares become our common concern. A world in which everybody cared and shared would be our Father's house of many mansions here on earth.

For all that says St. Paul don't shift your pack to your neighbor's back. The brave discharge of one's own duty lightens the cares of others and enables life. Our personal responsibility are not weights to bow us down; they are strong supports to hold us up. St. Paul's injunction is the secret of a comrades world. When we take the burdens of life shoulder to shoulder and heart to heart, we can bear them with a song.

Prayer: O, Thou Who has appointed us to labor and charged us with duty, deliver us from complaint and establish us in strength for our own burdens, and so help those connected with us in their trouble or adversity that they may possess their souls in patience and through our sharing find a happy issue out of trouble. Amen.

Campaign Book of Democrats Will be Larger This Year

Party Likely to Avoid Pitfalls of 1936, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Although the Democratic National committee has announced that it will issue a campaign book this year as it did in 1936, the probabilities are that the Democrats will avoid the pitfalls they stepped into last time. To infer otherwise is to assume that the Democratic party chieftains intend to violate the Federal corrupt practices act as they did in 1936 and "shake-down" corporations by a form of political blackmail from which the citizens were supposed to be protected by the federal statutes.

The Democratic committee says the campaign book will be larger than ever and that it is a legitimate medium for advertising by corporations. But unfortunately it was not the advertising revenue that caused the rumpus, but the high-pressure sale at ridiculously large prices of copies of the book itself—prices far beyond the intrinsic value of the publication. The federal law plainly prohibits what was done in the name of the Democratic National committee.

The fact that the department of justice under a Democratic administration has never submitted the facts to a grand jury, so that the guilt or innocence of the members of the Democratic National committee involved could be established, will stand as a stain on Democratic government—much worse in some respects than the Teapot Dome scandal. To the fascist and communist observers abroad it will come as further evidence that Democratic government is sometimes not on the level either with itself or with the people when it comes to methods of keeping or getting power and public office.

Once confidence in the integrity of governmental processes is undermined, the public is not apt to think much of other laws or regulations which the party in power virtuously attempts to enforce.

WPA Scandals
The WPA scandals of course became so conspicuous as a consequence of misuse of governmental machinery by the Democrats in the 1936 and 1938 elections that the Hatch law had to be adopted to satisfy an outraged public opinion, but the joker is that the Democrats do not prosecute themselves for law violations. The Hatch law, therefore is as dead unless some means of enforcement is found.

When the Democratic committee in its public statement says that everybody knows the Democratic administration "has no favors to sell," it forgets the recent testimony before the house committee investigating the labor board when a CIO official was revealed to have complained bitterly to the labor board of a decision which, in a rare instance, went against the CIO.

"That's not what we pay our money for," the CIO executive exclaimed. Later he made a lame explanation that he was referring to something else than the fact that the CIO was a contributor in large sums and a lender of $500,000 to the Democratic National campaign of 1936. The Democrats will not borrow from the CIO again. Getting money from big business is easier and the demands after election are not so exacting.

The Democratic committee attempts to throw a smokescreen over the Republican challenge that the campaign book of 1940 be abandoned by arguing that the Republicans should cease to take contributions "from the Weirs, the Du Ponts and the Pews." But the contributions from these men were their individual gifts to the campaign and not the funds of their corporations. It is not unlawful for individuals to contribute and for every rich man the Republicans had as a giver in 1936, the Democrats had many more.

Johnson Scores Opposition To Three Reform Measures

Editor's Note: During Westbrook Pagler's vacation, the daily column by Hugh S. Johnson will be substituted in the Post-Crescent.

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C.—There are three hot potatoes in this congress—(1) The Hatch bill extensions prevent political activity in state administrative departments disbursing federal funds—(2) The Smith committee's suggestion to get rid of the present national labor relations board, appoint a new one, prevent it from being both prosecutor and judge and make it impartial rather than a pressure bureau to force a particular form of organization on labor whether it wants it or not—(3) The Walter-Logan bill to give quick, easy and inexpensive relief from carism in the growing maze of little one man governments by requiring them to proceed within their constitutional and statutory authority without the present necessity of long and prohibitively expensive court procedure.

Perhaps each of these provisions could be brought nearer to perfection by greater delay—but there has been delay enough. All three areas stink. All three need attention along the general lines of these proposals. This is so clear that even their opponents hardly question it. The direction of the abuses in all three cases trend toward political coercion and perpetuation of the party in power, toward arbitrary personalization away from the stability of government by law and toward the caprice and tyranny of government by men with few statutory limits on their discretion.

It is true that a part of the opposition is from the minority party and to that extent sounds like building up campaign material and is tinged with partisanship. But that sound and taint are completely offset by the fact that standing alone that group is so far in the minority as to be futile. In every case, the sponsors and the strength of the supporters are Democrats.

But they are Democrats who, for the most part, are not radical and extreme New Dealers. There are notable exceptions, but the latter clique in congress is almost a unit in rabid and uncompromising opposition.

Third-Termers Among Hatch Bill Opponents
It isn't a pretty picture. This is largely the bunch that clamors for a third term for Mr. Roosevelt and

The Democrats have dispensed ambassadors and other favors to men who have contributed big sums to their campaigns and, of course, this is also what Republican administrations did in the past.

Answers Charge
As for the Democratic committee's charge that Republican campaign contributors pay high sums in effect for the benefits of a protective tariff like the Hawley-Smoot law, it is also true that the Democratic administration has been in power for nearly eight years and has never moved to repeal the Hawley-Smoot law, though in fairness it must be said that the Hull reciprocity agreements did tend to reduce a few of the duties. The protective tariff is on the statute books today, however, as much a result of Democratic as Republican influence.

It would be a much better thing for America if a law were enacted prohibiting contributions in excess of $5,000 by anybody and if at the same time so-called "non-political" gatherings like the AAA dinners throughout the country last week, plainly using governmental machinery to get votes, were prohibited.

It would also be a great step forward if the Federal Corrupt Practices act were enforced so that the shakedown of corporations by the agents of the Democratic committee would lead to prosecutions. Just why the Democrats need to raise $500,000 by sale of campaign book copies and advertisements when they have been using the WPA and AAA is considerable of a puzzle but, after all, the Democrats rolled up an unprecedented majority in 1936 and the statistics show that as the average of relief appropriations rose throughout the various counties that year, so did the percentage of the Democratic vote.

Party in politics is a long ways off—and the issue is begged by the cry that because rich men contribute lawfully to the Republican party this makes it right for a supposedly idealistic New Deal administration to do unlawful things. The decline in political morality today in the national government is cause for general concern. It has often in the past been the theme of "liberalism," but not nowadays.

Pupils Edit Newspaper At Sandy Slope School

The February issue of the "Sandy Slope School News," student newspaper of the Sandy Slope school, town of Grand Chute, has made its appearance under the direction of Irene Parsons, teacher. Contributors included Elaine Plamann, Richard Van Handel, Robert Behl, Lila Woldt, Joyce Schwalbach, Frederic Plamann, Gerhard Scheibe, Junior Woldt, Irene Gustin, Myrtle Schroeder, Lawrence Petersen, Donald Van Handel, Rosemary Van Handel and Nora Perry.

boils down to this—that they want to be able to crack down through expenditure of federal money in the states to influence elections in accordance with their own views and to take advantage of their incumbency in office, thus to perpetuate themselves or their associates. This can't possibly be described as anything less than evil. Nothing has done more credit to Mr. Roosevelt than his support of the principles of Senator Hatch's proposals.

It is different in degree and detail, but the opposition to the other two proposals—to end the tyrannical partisanship of the labor board and to regulate personalized government in the bureaus—is cut from the same cloth. All three are proposals for political decency. Except as to method and detail, the opposition to them must be described as an effort to perpetuate political indecency.

"Slip" Madigan Blames Athletic Board Member

San Francisco — (P) — Edward P. (Slip) Madigan ousted as football coach at St. Mary's college, blames a member of the board of athletic control who "threatened to 'get me'." The board retorts that Madigan refused a chance to withdraw gracefully.

Silence still cloaks the board's reason for deciding Monday not to renew the contract of Madigan, who coached Great football teams with considerable success 19 years.

Madigan asserted that Andrew Burke, San Francisco attorney, had "swayed those on the board who are in favor of me but fear to buck his clique."

This charge drew a formal statement from J. Phillip Murphy, board chairman. He said the decision was reached more than a week ago and that it was suggested Madigan take a leave of absence with salary for the rest of his contract, expiring in March, 1941.

Chaffin Chapter By Gordon R. McIntyre

FOX RIVER VALLEY conference high school coaches and principals are meeting at Fond du Lac today and among other things they'll draw next year's cage schedule and assign officials. And, according to rumors, the officials will come in for considerable comment.

The other evening when the sports writers gathered here to pick the all-conference team, they were almost unanimous that the officializing this season was the worst in years. The criticism was that the new blood let games get away, that the whistle blowers weren't consistent in the way they called plays, that some of them called nothing and that others acted as if the evening's job was a rest cure and failed to blow their whistles above a peep, failed to indicate who had committed fouls and were inclined to listen to the ravings and rantings of some of the coaches.

Since then we've talked with a couple valley school officials and it seems they too have recognized the weaknesses. The comment of one was typical. He said that new men had been taken in because it was felt new blood was needed. But from now on, as far as he was concerned, he was going to demand some of the soundbys.

"I may yell at them during a game," he was supposed to have said, "but when it's all over and I cool off I know that the game was well handled."

Al Blinder finally got around to letting us know he won second place in the boys division of the state ping pong tournament at Shorewood over the weekend and has a new pen and pencil set to show for his efforts.

The squawk at Madison over the University of Wisconsin losing to Louisiana in a boxing program the other night indicates that you don't have to be a Musky Jackson to yell, "We was robbed!"

A recent comment in the Boston Traveler was something like this: Kay Rogers, sophomore at Harvard, has been singled out by his track coach, Jaako Mikola, as the leading trackman on the Crimson team.

Rogers, who gets up at 3 o'clock in the morning to work his way through school, took fourth in a mile recently to win the necessary point to allow Harvard to defeat Cornell, 14 to 13.

"The coach said that the most remarkable part of the meet was Rogers' performance. He ran the distance seven seconds faster than ever before—4:33 from 4:40.

Kay is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Rogers, 911 E. North street. He graduated from Appleton High school after a fair record as a track man.

It's too bad Lawrence college has ended athletic relations with Carroll. For instance, the Carroll cagers lose Binder, Kluge, Maabs, Beggs and Barry in June. And John Pauler left at the end of the semester. The Pioneers may have some potent frosh under cover but from here it seems too bad the Vikes can't get a couple more shots at them.

Joek Sutherland, the ex-Pitt mentor, still may coach football at some university next year. . . . Philadelphia reports say that the contract Joek signed with the Brooklyn Dodgers of the pro league contains a clause which allows the dentist to abrogate the agreement in case he receives an attractive college offer. One prominent fight manager says Johnny Paycheck is made to order for Joe Louis. . . . And that the Brown Bomber can name the round. . . . Says Paycheck can't take a punch on the kissers. . . . Both figure they've got pushovers.

Pro Football League Plans Annual Meeting

New York—(P) — Carl Storck, president of the National Football league, announced that the annual meeting would be in New York April 12-14. Matters to come up for decision include adoption of the 1940 schedule, already drawn up by Storck; election of president, secretary and two members of the finance committee; decide on changes in the playing rules, and the question of expanding the league's membership from ten clubs to twelve in 1941.

Since club owners and coaches will attend the sessions, it is possible that player deals also will develop.

Zephyr Cagers to Scrimmage Today At St. Nazianz Gym

Valley Catholic Champions Prepare for National Tourney at Chicago

MENASHA — St. Mary's High school cagers will scrimmage at the St. Lawrence Junior college gymnasium at St. Nazianz this afternoon in preparation for the national Catholic high school basketball tournament at Chicago.

The Zephyrs, three-times champions of the Fox Valley Catholic League, and winner of the St. Norbert invitational tournament, have received an official invitation to compete in the national tournament which will be held at Loyola university March 27 through 31.

Pairings for first round matches have not been announced yet but the Zephyrs probably will leave for Chicago on Tuesday, March 26. A squad of eight players will be carried for the tournament.

The trip to St. Nazianz today is intended as an outing for the squad rather than an intensive practice session. The team has been taking things easy since the season closed with the St. Norbert tournament, March 4 although the squad has been practicing daily.

May Meet Alumni
The Zephyrs still have two weeks in which to drill before the tournament opens. They held one scrimmage session this week and probably will scrimmage several times next week against former St. Mary's High school players. Arrangements probably will be made for the Zephyrs to practice on a larger court than their home floor so that they will not be handicapped too greatly at the tournament.

The squad for the national tournament will be the same as that which won the St. Norbert invitational tournament. That squad includes four seniors, Captain William Resch, N. Giesbach, J. Schuller and Joseph Fieweger. The first three are regular starters while Fieweger showed well as a reserve player in the St. Norbert tournament.

Three juniors on the squad are Farnham Johnson and Sylvester Burghardt, regulars, and Clarence Ciske, reserve. The eighth member of the team is Al Taves, a sophomore.

Elm Tree Bakers In Another Win Over Auctioneers

Appleton Squad Has Won Three Out of Four Games This Year

CLINTONVILLE — Clintonville Auctioneers lost a hard-fought game to the Appleton Elm Tree Bakers, 37 to 26, at Clintonville last night. The Auctioneers have not fared so well with the Bakers this year with the Appleton quintet winning three out of the four games the squads have played. The game was close until the waning minutes when, with the Clintonville squad in the rear, it began to pepper away and the Elm Trees took the rebounds and heaved long passes for sleepers.

The game was arranged by W. A. Olen, head of the Finnish relief campaign in Clintonville, and the net proceeds will be turned over to the national fund.

The first quarter saw the Bakers and the Clints play on even terms but the Doughboys, with a final spurt in the closing minutes of the quarter, took a 10 to 6 lead. A new five started the second period for Appleton and the Auctioneers missed several easy pot shots under the basket and the half ended 16 to 11 with the Elm Trees still leading. Clintonville got off to a good start in the third stanza and with Jumbo Elandt contributing free throws, took a 17 to 16 lead. The narrow margin was not for long as the Appleton boys again took the offensive and went out in front, 23 to 19.

The final quarter saw the Auctioneers on the Bakers' tails all the way until the last few minutes. The Elm Trees then got the rebounds, threw long passes to Karl Lilje under the bucket and six points were hung up in the last minute.

Mike Foley, crack Clintonville forward, took high scoring honors with 11 points on five field goals and a free throw. Sid Felts, who has been consistently the high scorer for the Auctioneers, was held to a lone bucket. Jack Sellers, Elm Tree guard, was the spearhead of the Appleton attack collecting with five fingers for 10 markers.

In a preliminary game the Clintonville C. Y. O. registered a 27 to 21 win over the Tilleda Titans. Melvin Wisniewski led the way for the Tilleda five with eight points while Gerry Planagan and Ray Hansen tied for top scoring honors for Clintonville with eight points each.

Neenah Takes Its First Game

Red Rockets Forced to Stave Off Sturgeon Bay Rush

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
FIELDBOUSE, Madison — Neenah advanced into the quarter finals of the state cage tournament last night with a narrow 41-38 victory over Sturgeon Bay, barely stifling a late fourth quarter rally after a 12 point lead had almost disappeared within a few short minutes.

The Red Rockets led from the first few minutes on relinquishing their advantage only momentarily as the Bays closed the gap early in the third period. Harland Hesselman's 14 points spurred Coach Jorgensen's team to its win, the lanky center dropping in six of his points with an unerring foul line eye.

Doug Hauke was another standout performer for Neenah, looping 11 points through the mesh and playing a steady floor game as well. Stan Kramer, Sturgeon Bay center, duplicated Hesselman's scoring feat.

Once under way in the first period, the Rockets sailed along the first quarter, going into the rest period with a 14-7 advantage largely on the strength of Hesselman's five points.

After Kramer had bobbed up under the basket for a short goal, Neenah began rimming the net again as Hoyman, Miller and Hauke collaborated to run the count to 20 and 8. Here the Bays began finding themselves, however, and the margin was cut to four points by halftime.

Sturgeon Bay resumed its rally immediately after the whistle, netting five quick points before Hauke loomed under the goal to again put the Rockets in the lead. It remained for Hesselman to tip in two rapid-fire goals midway through the period, however, before Neenah could relax with safety.

With a 35-27 margin going into the final quarter, the Rockets lost little time in augmenting their lead with five successive free throws and with a 12 point lead and barely more than five minutes remaining, the game seemed assured.

The Bays still fought, however, and with Murray and Kramer leading the drive with two goals apiece, succeeded in closing the difference to three points at the end. Free throws by Hauke and Hesselman in the waning moments helped materially in clinching the victory.

Oshkosh Wins 2nd Title Game

Whips Firestones, 60 to 46; Next Game Thursday at Akron, O.

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
OSHKOSH—The Oshkosh All Stars brought themselves one game nearer the National Basketball league championship last night when they completely overwhelmed the Akron Firestones, 60-46, in the second of a three out of five game playoff.

The All Stars took the lead at the beginning of the game and held it unchallenged for the entire four periods. At the end of the first quarter they led 13-6 and at the half 32-20. They stretched their lead in the third quarter to 46-35 and ended the game with a 14 point margin, 60-46.

Manager Lonnie Darling's Oshkosh team seemed to be "on" in their shots at the basket, having a percentage of 27.6 per cent field goals for the number of shots taken. The Firestone team did not trail far behind them in percentage as they tossed 23.4 per cent through the hoop.

In the first half, the All Stars made 13 out of 45 shots while the Akron boys made 9 out of 38, the latter getting off to a slow start by sinking only two out of 20 attempts. The Akron team scored on 10 out of 43 shots in the second half while the Oshkosh quintet made 11 out of 42.

Leroy Edwards, Oshkosh's stellar center, again was high scorer of the game by tossing in 16 points for the home club. Hassmiller and O'Brien were tied for the Akron scoring honors with 11 points apiece. Herm Witasek, speedy Oshkosh guard, also had 11 points.

Resume Series Thursday

The two teams will resume their series Thursday night on the Akron floor and will play through Saturday if the Firestones take the next two games. The All Stars need but one more win to take the title of champs away from the Firestones who beat out the All Stars last year.

The game was fast, as evidenced by the high score, and both teams were tight on the defensive, fighting hard to lay their hands on the ball. Moir, who was the Akron high point man on Monday night, was kept out of the game by a charley horse, but will see service in the next game at Akron.

"Lefty" Edwards was more his old self in the game last night, snaring rebounds and dropping in baskets. Charlie Shipp of the All Stars proved himself valuable as a defensive guard as well as a sure shot on the long ones. Witasek, referred to as the "North Dakota Jackrabbit," put on a good exhibition of racing down the floor to block Firestone shots and grab their passes.

The Oshkosh squad never was in danger of losing the lead to the invaders and managed to keep a ten point edge from the end of the first quarter on O'Brien showed himself to be the spark of the Firestones in the second half by dropping in nine points. He was high scorer for both teams during the two periods.

Training Camp Notes

By the Associated Press
VALON, Calif.—The Chicago Cubs prepared to set out for the mainland and their first exhibition game with the White Sox today minus a regular third sacker (Stan Hack), a regular center fielder (Hank Leiber) and their most famous pitcher (Dizzy Dean). Hack, who has been recovering from an operation, was due in from Los Angeles today but holdouts Dean and Leiber haven't been heard from lately.

Bradenton, Fla.—Hank Greenberg is hitting as hard as a left fielder as he used to when he played first base, but it appears he still has a lot to learn about fielding his new position. Hank was over near center field yesterday when Cookie Lavagetto broke a triple that started Brooklyn's five-run rally. A moment later he had to do a lot more road work on Roy Cullenbine's pop-fly double.

San Bernardino, Calif.—Manager Frankie Frisch says he doesn't expect his Pittsburgh Pirates to remain entirely away from alcoholic beverages during the championship season, but any drinking during the training period is out.

Orlando, Fla.—President Clark Griffith of Washington's Senators says Alejandro Carrasquel is going to be a better pitcher this year because of a talk about letting up against certain batters. "I took him up in my room for an hour and really poured it on about letting up," said Griffith. "He heard things he won't hear in a long time."

St. Petersburg, Fla.—The two most recent arrivals in the New York Yankees camp, Joe DiMaggio and Red Giffing, are full of ambition for the coming season. DiMaggio hopes to lead the league in batting again and take home runs and runs-batted-in honors as well. Ruffing says he expects to win at least 20 games this year.

Winter Haven, Fla.—Retribution wasted no time catching up with Johnny Peacock, Boston Red Sox catcher. He tossed a ball at Jim Tabor and hit him a finger that had been cut, sending the third baseman to the sidelines a few minutes later. Peacock was hit on the leg by a batted ball, a vein swelled up, and he, too, hustled out of uniform.

San Antonio, Texas—As fans at the St. Louis Browns camp see it, the broad smile on Manager Fred Haney's face may be attributed to the hit of Chet Laabs, the improved hurling arm of Jake Wade and the impressive fielding of Joe Gallagher.

Winter Haven, Fla.—Bill Terry keeps trying hard to make trades that will strengthen his New York Giants but all he's been able to get so far was a ground keeper who has been serving Cleveland Indians. After Monday's game he drove to Fort Myers to confer with Cleveland officials and visited the Boston Bees at Bradenton.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER HABITS OF BUFFALO

While Coronado and his visitors were in Cibola, several visitors came to see them. They were Indians from a place about 125 miles to the east.

Old picture of a buffalo made after Coronado's return from his great trip.

The visitors brought presents of shields and animal hides. They told Coronado about certain large animals, and showed him a picture of one of them. The picture had been painted on the skin of a buffalo.

The Spaniards believed the animals must be cattle, but they were puzzled by the woolly hair on the hides which had been given them. This hair did not look like the coat of a cow.

That was the first time the explorers had seen American buffalo hides. Later, when they marched eastward and entered the Rio Grande valley, they saw buffaloes, or bison, in real life.

Writing about the animals, one of the Spaniards said:

"The bulls have a short face. Their eyes stand out at the side, and they can see who is following them. They have long beards, like goats.

"They have a hump which is larger than a camel's. The horns are short and thick, and cannot be seen very much above the hair.

"They shed some of their hair in the month of May. They rub against trees in small valleys to get the hair off, and keep this up until only the down is left. When they run, they carry the tail straight up in the air. Their little calves are red, just like the calves of our cattle, but they change their color when they grow older.

"They travel in such large numbers that nobody could count them. Their wool is fine, and ought to make good cloth."

The Spaniards often spoke of these animals as "hump-backed bulls" or "hump-backed cows." The fact is that buffaloes, or bison, are distant relatives of cattle.

Coronado and his men moved eastward into a central part of Texas. Then most of them turned westward, but Coronado and about 30 mounted soldiers headed straight to the north.

AS LEGIONNAIRES GAVE NEW CHAIR TO DISABLED VETERAN

New London—Fred Poole, 47-year-old disabled veteran of the World war, was presented with a new wheel chair at his home Monday night by the American Legion Norris-Spencer post of which he is a member. His youthful sons were as delighted as he as testified by Freddie, Jr., aged 8, who quickly perched on one arm. Jack, 15, stands behind. Shaking his hand is Post Commander Martin Kubisiak and among the presenting delegation were, left to right, William Reberg, John Nugent, O. K. Ziebur, Otto Krueger, Arthur Unger, Carl Schoenrock and Walter Spiering. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Legion Comrades Bring New Chair to Crippled War Hero

New London—It was both a solemn and a joyous occasion when a representative group of the American Legion Norris-Spencer post called at the Fred Poole home, a half mile out at the extreme west end of North Water street Monday night, to present one of their number with a new wheel chair.
It's been 10 years since Fred Poole, 47, World war veteran, lost the complete use of his legs and his old chair was beginning to rebel against constant repairs.
A World war hero who last summer received a silver star decoration "For Gallantry in Action," Fred Poole has been unable to prove that his disability is the result of injuries he received while serving with the American doughboys in France and therefore has been denied government aid for himself and his family. His wife and two young sons and two young daughters operate the small farm on which they live.

The Silver Star is regarded next to the Distinguished Service Cross in importance and Poole made application for his medal on the pleas of his youngest son, Freddie Jr., aged 8. The medal was secured by County Service Officer Francis J. Meunhardt through the original citation papers which Poole preserved.

As a member of Company K, 16th Infantry of the First Division, he spent months in some of the most desperate military operations of the war. He participated in three major offensives, the St. Mihiel and two thrusts in the Meuse-Arzonne, and fought in defensive actions at Mondier-Nyon and Aisne-Marne.
"War is a senseless thing," he says.

The cymbal is the oldest known musical instrument made of brass. It was used as early as 1047 B. C.

Change Winter-killed oil—and here's why to change to OIL-PLATING

Slush in the gutter is scarcely thinner and dirtier than Winter oil over-staying in your engine. Drain now! Get cylinders, rings, bearings, and other precious parts OIL-PLATED by changing to Conoco Germ Processed oil—patented.

Your Mileage Merchant puts it in at an ordinary price, in the ordinary way. But how extraordinary is the man-made extra substance in the Conoco formula, that sets up a strong "power of attraction"—makes engine parts draw glossy OIL-PLATING all over themselves and keep holding it close... as drain-proof as plating on hub caps.

Not for one instant can OIL-PLATING drain "down home" to the crankcase. Though you're speeding the limit or parking long hours, OIL-PLATING is always faithfully maintained. All in addition to the strong oil-film of Germ Processed oil, this drain-proof OIL-PLATING helps to keep down wear. And that's how to keep your engine nearest to the oil economy of its youth. Your correct Germ Processed oil for Spring, at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station today, gives you an OIL-PLATED engine. Continental Oil Company

Shawano County Urged to Test Indian's Claim of Tax Freedom

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
Madison—Attorney General John E. Martin today suggested court determination of the question of whether farm homesteads granted to emancipated Stockbridge Indians in Shawano county are subject to taxation, and meanwhile advised Shawano county authorities to keep such lands on the tax roll.

Martin, in an opinion to James Larson, Shawano county district attorney, said that whether privately-owned lands which were purchased by the U. S. government and conveyed with restrictions to individual Stockbridge Indians who are no longer wards of the government are tax exempt as constituting instrumentalities of the federal government "is a question that should be passed upon by the courts, and in the absence of any adjudication upon the question, tax authorities should assess and tax such lands."

A representative of the Indian agency, it was revealed, had asked the county board to cancel outstanding tax certificates.

All of the lands in question were previously owned by private individuals and were subject to taxation, it was pointed out. Some town assessors continue to assess the lands, while others do not.

Title to the lands was conveyed to the Indians with the condition that the properties shall not "be alienated or encumbered without the consent of the Secretary of the Interior," Larson told Martin.

In discussing the implications of the problem, Martin wrote: "While Congress undoubtedly has wide powers in designating instrumentalities of the federal government and in declaring such instrumentalities to be exempt from taxation, it is, nevertheless, without power to grant a tax immunity upon federal agencies and instrumentalities in excess of that conferred by the constitution of the United States."

"Otherwise, Congress could declare all private property to be an instrumentality of the Federal government, and by withholding it from the taxing jurisdiction of the state, could, in effect destroy the sovereignty of the state. If, as has been said, the power to tax is the power to destroy, likewise the power to exempt from taxation is the power to destroy the governmental unit whose functioning depends upon the receipt of tax revenues. The precise limits of the powers of congress with respect to the problem here involved has never been exactly defined..."

Quills are said to have been first used for pens in the year 553.

Better Housing and Home Show Opens Thursday

Latest Offerings In Building World Will be Featured

More Than 50 Exhibits on Floor of Armory for 3-Day Event

The doors in Armory D will open on the sixth annual Better Housing and Home Show, sponsored by the Knights of Pythias, at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Several thousand people of Appleton and vicinity are expected to visit the armory during the 3-day show for inspection of the latest in building materials and methods and in home furnishings and equipment of all types.

Timed in step with the approach of spring and the heightening of interest in home building, the 1940 Better Housing and Home Show is expected to draw capacity crowds during the three afternoons and evenings. The exhibition will close Saturday night.

Aimed at encouraging the construction of dwellings, with the accompanying increase in home ownership, and at assisting people who are planning to remodel and redecorate their homes, the show has become one of the most popular and beneficial events held in this vicinity.

More than 50 individuals and firms will sponsor exhibits at the show. The armory will be open afternoons and evenings Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Afternoon hours are from 2 o'clock to 5:30 and evening hours from 7 o'clock until 10:30.

Ballard Heads Committee
Earl Ballard is general chairman for the 3-day show. Other members of the Knights of Pythias committee are Victor Schmidt, Wilmer Krueger, Earl Miller, George Krueger, Henry Osmun, George Krueger, Lawrence Brinkman, and Gilbert Trentlage.

A music company has arranged to present special entertainment features at the show. Popular recordings will be heard over an amplifying system.

Not only will the booths and exhibits be constructed in novel and interesting ways, but the armory itself will be decorated throughout in an attractive manner. Construction of the booths and exhibits started last night and the firms were moving in displays today.

Besides displaying a wide line of building materials, home furnishings, and other items affiliated with building, many of the exhibitors will hold demonstrations in their booths for the prospective home builder. The show will introduce to the people of this vicinity 1940's offering in building materials, paints, gas and electrical equipment, air-conditioned heating units, plumbing fixtures, and many other products that go to give Americans such a wide choice in types of homes, decorations, and appointments.

Helps Business
The accomplishments of the Better Housing and Home Show are threefold.

It offers people of Appleton vicinity an early look at what 1940 offers in home designs and furnishings.

It promotes building of more homes, and therefore is a boon to happiness, for home owners are notably the most contented and secure.

It has a definite economic implication, for when the building industry thrives, all affiliated business feels the uplift and employment is boosted.

The committee expects the show to get a record for attendance, basing their forecast on the unprecedented number of exhibitors and sponsors and the lively interest in home building that has been evinced in Appleton and vicinity during the last year.

The committee has announced that Company 'D' of the 127th Infantry will hold "surprise parties" in the basement of the armory each of the three evenings.

4 ROOMS, DINETTE, BATH AND PORCH

An unpretentious home that achieves its appeal through simplicity in design is illustrated above. Comfort is the principal thought in mind in the construction of the attractive dwelling. An examination of the floor plan will prove that this goal has been reached.

The compact room arrangement effectively separates the living rooms from the sleeping quarters. The open hearth is a desirable feature. The porch gives the house the appearance of a larger dwelling and provides additional happiness and comfort.

Many Things to Consider When You Buy Lot for New Building

So you're going to build a home!

But it's not as easy as all that.

There are many things to be considered, one of the chief of which is the neighborhood. Many safeguards have been thrown about the prospective home builder by FHA requirements which must be met before an FHA insured loan will be granted.

It's considered good practice to pay no more than 10 to 15 per cent of the cost of your home for the lot on which you build it. This figure calls for all improvements having been installed and paid for in improvements are included pavements, sidewalks, sewers and utilities.

Watch For This

Thus if you are going to spend $10,000 for your house you can allow $1,000 to $1,500 for the lot. In sections where improvements have not been completed or produced or where you must pay for them it is considered good practice to pay 5 to 10 per cent of the cost of the house for the lot.

To avoid pitfalls be sure the outlook is going to appeal to you when you live in your new home. It's not at all out of the way to look over vacant property in the neighborhood with a view of seeing that no objectionable buildings could be built there later. As the next door neighbor and others in the block are about the closest thing to your family, be sure they are desirable.

Check on These

Here's a check list that should be of value in selecting property for your new home:

Is the property in a good section?
Is transportation good?
Is the section safe and approachable?

Are there good stores close by?
Are schools close by?
Are churches, recreational centers and social centers close by or reached by good transportation?

Is the neighborhood one in which other property owners take pride, keep yards neat, homes painted?

Are there protective restrictions in the deed controlling future development?
Is the lot of sufficient size should you want a garden?

200,000 Finish Paying Building Loans This Year

At Least 1,000,000 Families Have Bought Homes in 10 Years

More people than ever before are going to get clear title to their homes this year, by completing their payments to savings, building and loan associations, the United States Savings and Loan league predicts. Paul Endicott, Pomona, Calif., chairman of the league's home building and home ownership committee, points out that about 200,000 should achieve this final step in home ownership this year, according to the monthly repayments called for in loan contracts. That will mean that during the decade 1930-1940 about 1,000,000 families borrowing from these institutions have reached the debt free home ownership goal.

The great majority of those paying off the final amount of their debt this year borrowed for their homes in 1928, on the then prevalent savings and loan plan of an 11 1/2 to 12 year loan. About $700,000,000 was their original obligation and this year's final payments on the principal will aggregate about $81,215,000, the committee chairman said. The rest was paid off month by month during the depression and the subsequent recovery.

150,000 Clear in '39
Last year the comparable figure was 150,000 debts paid off with some $60,000,000 of final payments.

Endicott said. "Savings, building and loan associations made the greatest number of loans in their history in 1928, about 615,000 new borrowers having been added that year. While a majority of those loans were written to bring about debt free ownership by sometime in 1940, a considerable number of them were for shorter loan terms of six to seven years for repayment. Most of these were later refinanced by the associations when the depression made it impossible for people to carry the large monthly payments so short a loan term required.

These are generally farther behind now than those who started out on the 11 to 12 year repayment basis." Besides the monthly repayments which mark the final disposition of 200,000 families' debts, there will be about $380,000,000 paid this year in monthly installments on the principal of all other savings and loan borrowers' obligations, the committee estimated.

Endicott declared: "Gradual repayments like this demonstrate why these 200,000 families in spite of the disadvantages of lowered incomes were able to keep up their original plan of having a free and clear home by 1940."

He explained that of the original 615,000 borrowers in 1928, the associations had refinanced about

More Color and Convenience Is Found in Modern Bathroom

Color in bathroom fixtures is still very much in vogue. Ivory is currently the favorite, although very popular are green, peach, soft tan, light brown and delicate blue, home show exhibits prove.

Bathrooms have never been so interesting and colorful as they are today. Tubs are lower, some of the new models measuring only 16 inches from the floor to the rim. The new tubs also have a wider, flatter bottom, which lessens the danger of slipping.

From the displays at the home show it appears that no bathroom is up to date without a shower, either over the tub or in a separate compartment. New types of showerheads, only two and one-half inches in diameter, save from 25 to 60 per cent of water with consequent economies in fuel for the heating of water. The new showerheads are non-clogging, and can be adjusted to give a stream of varying intensity.

Improve Tub Design
Improvements in the design of bathtubs have been paralleled by similar changes in the valves, waste controls and fittings. Spouts are larger so that the tub fills more quickly. They are placed well above the rim of the fixture to prevent the possibility of the water being siphoned out of the fixture in case pressure drops in the supply line. Waste openings are larger to provide quicker drainage.

New models are an outcome of constant study of the problems of sanitation, safety, practicability, and the needs and desires of the public.

Of all the fixtures no other is made in such a wide variety of styles and sizes as the lavatory commonly known as the washbowl. More than 200 different kinds of lavatories are available.

The advent of the powder room or first floor washroom has given impetus to the development of smart and distinctive lavatories. It is indeed, a far cry from the pitcher and washbowl in grandfather's bedroom to the handsome and colorful fixture of today designed by artist-engineers. In the well planned bathroom the lavatory is the most conspicuous fixture in the room, deliberately placed where it will catch the eye.

Places Fixtures Carefully
Planning a bathroom so that the fixtures are in the best possible location is extremely important. It is best not to put a bathtub under a window. Support bars to assist getting in and out of tubs are desirable. Avoid putting towel bars over the tub where a shower will strike them. The shower curtain rod should be within the inside face of the tub.

Accentuating the decorative features of the lavatory is the modern medicine cabinet with its handsome mirror and tasteful lighting. An especially striking effect may be obtained by the use of a round mirror with tubular lights.

At the Home Show, young couples and families how to put their best foot forward on a small budget, and make the home a charming, livable place.

Present day styles are refreshingly straightforward, combining graceful lines, pleasing proportions and fine craftsmanship.

Express Spirit of Era
Perhaps this is why young people decide in favor of modern. It helps express the spirit of their own era. But they choose: Eighteenth century styles, too, feeling that these contribute to the traditional background and create an atmosphere of culture and refinement always to be desirable in the home. Linking the present with the past achieves elegance as well as smartness in surroundings.

Early American furnishings are designed for those who enjoy entertaining in cheerful, charming surroundings with friendly furniture that lends warmth and cordially to every room in the house. French styles, too, during the past few months, have found their way into the smaller homes and apartments. They no longer are too ornate for modern living because elaborate lines have been simplified in the French provincial pieces to combine the past with the present.

Consider Room Size
Look at the size of your room before you start furnishing it. Keep the furniture out of the middle of the room and don't fill all the corners. Groupings before adequate wall space so that you will have not only symmetry, but conversational ease.

When you are choosing color schemes don't forget to consider the light factor. In a sunless room you can make colors so vibrant that you create an atmosphere of sparkling warmth, and in a sunny room you can tone down over bright rays with a cool, aqueous color.

In general, the warmest colors are red and orange, which become less heated as they run into the yellows; definitely cooler when they become yellow greens. Green is cool, blue green cooler, and blue practically shivery.

These are Warm Colors
Add purple to blue and you have a warmer touch; red-purple brings you back to a warm red again. And so the cycle is completed.

In most cases you will want to use the warm colors in northern and eastern rooms; cool colors in southern and western rooms. But consider too the effect you want to create in the more subtle tones which colors can give a room.

Red is exciting, yellow is cheerful, blue is restful and the intermediate shades vary from one emotion to the next just as they vary in catching and holding light.

Painters Urge Riot of Colors In Decorations

Different Colors on Every Wall Is Dictum of 1940 Fashion

If the painting contractors of America have their way in 1940 no four walls of a home will be alike in color!

They're getting on the band wagon with Dame Fashion and plan to ride along advising home owners it's just as fashionable to keep pace with the times in home decoration as it is in wearing apparel, cosmetics, and hair dressing.

According to plans outlined at the convention of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America, home owners will be advised to dress up uninteresting features. If one wall of a room is drab bring it to life with color by using a different pattern or shade than on the other three walls. Contrast! That's the 1940 trend.

Contrast—No Shocks
Contrast between walls and ceiling, contrast between adjoining rooms — not shocking but in harmony or complement — bringing out the best features of a room by contrasting dark colors and light colors to make big things look smaller, small things look bigger.

They call it "Paint Styling," the selection of popular colors and applying them to different parts of a house in keeping with current color trends. New beauty for old surfaces.

Here are a few ideas from the painting contractors on styling interiors according to the dictates of paint fashion:

Halls—The hall is the handshake of the house. It should greet people with a bright smile. Paint with bright, cheerful colors.

Living rooms—If the living room is square and uninteresting, feature one wall with a different pattern as a focal point of interest, such as the wall above the fireplace. Small living rooms can be made to appear more spacious by use of a light, single color or walls and ceiling. Ceilings which appear too high should be painted darker than the sidewalls to make them seem lower.

For Dining Room
Dining rooms—Use a color harmonizing with the living room color scheme or in complement to it.

Libraries—Rich colors will enhance the tone of book bindings.

Kitchens—If appliances are white, any color is successful. If the room is small use one bright color; if large, use two tones of the same color one light the other dark.

Breakfast nook—If the nook is part of the kitchen, paint it the same color. If it is off by itself, any color will do providing a stenciled or applied design is used to make it artistic.

Bedrooms—Paint brightly, cheerfully using your favorite color.

Rumpus room—You are the color "magician" here.

Window Frames Should Be Carefully Built

A window in a home is a mechanical as well as an architectural feature.

The trend to more and larger windows — corner, bay, casement and panoramic — calls for the installation of properly constructed window frames which will keep out dirt and drafts by making a weather tight joint with the walls.

Window sashes are next in importance to window frames. Sashes must fit properly in the window frames to eliminate a big source of drafts.

Basement Is Starting Point For Majority of Home Fires

More than half of residential fires start in the basement. That should be a clue to where to start in making homes safer. Among the common causes are piling hot ashes against wooden partitions or defective smoke pipes too close to wood.

The National Safety council keeps a close check on home accidents. Reading its report, one would believe that the home is just about as dangerous a place as one could be.

Statistics show that home fires account for nearly two-thirds of the annual loss of life through fire, which totals more than 10,000 persons.

See Record Year For Refrigerators

Demand Constantly Growing for Automatic Food Saving

With electrical manufacturers now offering the latest developments in the science of refrigeration at the lowest price in the history of the industry, appliance dealers in the Appleton area are looking toward a banner business year in 1940.

The growing public demand for perfect automatic refrigeration and the consequent mass production of electric refrigerators have worked wonders in the last 12 or 15 years. The average family size unit that once was considered a bargain at $250 can now be had for less than half that figure, but with this important difference—the 1940 refrigerator is a vastly improved machine.

Progress Rapid
Featured now are the gleaming, white enameled exterior; the thick insulation; the quiet, trouble free motor; the spotless interior; the generous quota of ice trays with their fast freezing controls; the vegetable and fruit compartments; the automatic electric light, the touch type door handles and many other improvements. And then consider the pioneer "box" of 1928.

The Modern Kitchen bureau declares that the 1940 refrigerators offer "twice the value for half the cost." Progress has also been made in further reducing the operating cost of electric refrigerators. Actual tests conducted with a wide variety of installations show the five or six cubic foot family size requires an average of only about 30 kilowatt hours per month. At the average residential rate in the Appleton area, this means only 90 cents per month for modern, fully automatic refrigeration.

New Shower Units Easy To Put Into Bathroom

Shower cabinets adapted to bathrooms of various sizes and shapes and which harmonize with modern walls of tile as well as plaster are on display at the home show.

The new shower cabinets are complete units in themselves. They require no expensive wall preparation and no additional under structure. They are built like a booth with a tight glass door which prevents splashing water over the bathroom floor. There is a transparent opening at the top for the escape of steam. The bottoms are self-proof.

Another feature is that seats can be installed to make shower bathing as much a pleasure for invalids as for the vigorously healthy.

The showers are fitted with simple valves and a modern shower head which can be regulated to give a gentle shower or a needlelike downpour.

Water Softeners Good for Winter

Home Laundering Easier If Softened Water Is Provided

Soft water is a satisfying convenience all the year found, but during the cold winter months its advantages are most appreciated, the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau says.

On wash day in midwinter clothes are as fluffy, white and clean smelling as the sun dried summer laundry, when softened water is provided in the home. In addition, softened water cuts the annual soap and cleanser bill in half, because it makes a rich, plentiful suds with less soap. It gives silks and laces longer life by washing out all the dirt from the fibers of the materials.

Soft water protects the natural texture of the skin, which is inclined to be chapped and roughened by winter weather. The prickly rashes and blemishes which appear on the skin of small children are avoided when the water in the home is conditioned by an improved water softener.

Water softeners are available on the market from small portable softeners that can be attached to any faucet, to automatic softeners for the entire water supply to the house.

These softeners condition the water by filtering it through a layer of zeolite and gravel. Zeolite has the unique property of taking out calcium and magnesium from the hard water and replacing it with soft water sodium salts. This action is instantaneous and automatic, according to the bureau.

Don't Neglect Cellar Stairs in Building

Cellar stairs deserve more consideration than they have been receiving. Despite the fact that cellar stairs bear more heavy loads than other stairs in the house, they are frequently constructed in a careless manner.

While cellar stairs need not be finished as well as the main stairs, they should be given as much consideration as far as safety and use are concerned. A railing and adequate head room are the two main factors to remember.

Colored Concrete Is Beautiful, Economical

Concrete in varied hues offers a novel though practical method of flooring the basement and recreation rooms in homes. The application is no restricted to residences, however, as many uses have also been found for such floors in industrial and commercial structures.

Durable and easily kept clean, colored concrete floors require no repeated repainting.

Wallpaper Is More Than Just a Covering for Wall

Wallpaper's primary use is as a covering for walls, but there are many other functions this material may serve.

Manufacturers are promoting the use of wallpaper as a ceiling covering on the basis that it substitutes decorative interest for bare concrete. Rooms gain in unity and effectiveness, they say, by the use of an appropriate ceiling paper blending into the walls. The interior of cupboards offers opportunity for effective wall paper use. Modern paper designs form excellent backgrounds for china, as well as emphasizing the character and color scheme of the dining room and kitchen.

Closets, closets are now being wallpapered, either to carry on the treatment of the room or to give decorative bare corners and unfinished plaster closets appear bare and incongruous when closet doors are left open, while an added advantage is claimed for wallpaper in that it prevents plaster dust or paint from getting on the clothes.

Approve 27 Millions Housing Loans to 13 Communities

Washington, D. C. — Loan contracts to local housing authorities for construction of low-rent projects to rehouse low-income families from the Nation's slums passed the $600,000,000 mark today when President Roosevelt, upon recommendation of Nathan Straus, Administrator of the United States Housing Authority, approved loans totaling $27,236,000 for 13 communities.

These loans, to defray 90 per cent of the estimated $30,273,000 cost of 18 low-rent and slum clearance projects brought the total of USHA loans approved to $624,114,000 for 158 local housing authorities throughout the Nation. Their programs call for the erection of 379 projects in 167 different communities and provide a total of 140,242 dwelling units to rehouse about 560,000 dwellers in the slums.

Earmarkings outstanding for further loans now total but $52,212,000, which with the $624,114,000 in approved loan contracts, makes a total of $676,326,000 in USHA commitments to 178 local housing authorities.

To date, 184 USHA-aided projects totaling 71,699 dwelling units have gone under construction, or have been completed, in 25 States, the District of Columbia, the Territory of Hawaii and Puerto Rico. Tenants are occupying 18 projects in Allentown, Pa.; Augusta, Ga.; Austin, Texas; Buffalo, N. Y.; Charleston, S. C.; Dayton, Ohio; Detroit, Mich.; Jacksonville and Miami, Fla.; New York City and Syracuse, N. Y.; and Toledo and Youngstown, Ohio.

The largest of the new loan contracts was $7,092,000 to Philadelphia for a project to provide about 1,500 decent dwellings for low-income families in that city, where two USHA-aided developments totaling 1,535 units already are under construction. Louisville, where two projects totaling 1,594 dwellings are rising on what once were two of the worst slum areas in the city, received a loan contract for two more developments totaling 1,194 units while Providence, R. I., plans two projects totaling 1,056 units at a $4,428,000 loan contract.

No Gamble About Building if It Is Done Properly

Know What You Want. Don't Make Changes After Work Starts

Why do some families build new homes and find it a glorious experience while others seem to have nothing but trouble and end up soured on building so much that they say they would never want to go through it again?

A lot depends upon selecting a reliable contractor who knows his business, but a lot more depends upon the owner knowing what he wants and what he can afford to pay. It is easy to make expensive bad guesses in building a home. Usually those who rush into a building project with vague ideas of what they want are those who come to grief. It pays to take plenty of time in planning a home before signing on the dotted line of a building contract.

Give Contractor a Chance. The home building contractor can do a better job and can build the kind of a house the owner desires if he has adequate information on what the owner wants and how much he can afford to pay.

The builder or general contractor gathers together for the home owner's convenience in one person the functions of as many as 30 different trades and occupations. The process of determining the price for a home is one of carefully checking the materials and labor operations in these 30 trades.

There are many qualities and many prices for each operation. Someone has to make the decision as to just which grade material shall be used for a certain place in the house and how the work shall be done. It is the answer to these questions which determines the final cost.

Don't Make Guesses. If you can take the time to give your builder exact information as to your requirements and wishes there will be no reason for his guessing, and making decisions which might boost the cost of the house. When specific information is lacking it is natural for the builder to estimate high enough to cover all contingencies.

If you want more house for your dollar, help your builder by outlining to him the full amount of the monthly payment which your budget should stand and the amount you can originally invest. Ask plenty of questions, make sure that you understand each other perfectly before you permit him to bid.

Make sure, before a detailed cost estimate and bid is made, that the design you have selected is within the general range you wish. The builder can tell you this. Don't despair if the first estimate you get from the house you want exceeds your cost limit. Go over the plan with the builder. Every house built is a compromise. Remember that slight changes in the requirements which cut the cost of each item 5 per cent all along the line may make as much as $1,000 difference in the total cost.

Avoid making your builder gamble. If he is sure of his ground and has full knowledge of exactly what is required of him he will be able to get a good house for a small amount of money. He will not try to profit, but if he must take risks he will try to protect himself. Remove the risks and cut your costs.

Change your mind before you start the building job, not during it. Talk is cheap but building materials and labor cost money. Do these things:

1. Before you spend money for plans, get two or three opinions from competent persons as to the general price class into which your choice falls.

2. Question every decision as to kind of material or equipment to be sure that some other material

SIMPLE BUT MODERN DWELLING

The home illustrated above is representative of the homes available to any responsible wage-earner. One of its best points, aside from all-around livability, is the attached garage which makes it unnecessary to step outside in inclement weather. Modern throughout, it will accommodate a family of four to six persons.

A spacious porch, with a vestibule and clothes closet at the entrance to the home, and a sizeable living room are pleasant features of this dwelling. The living room runs the full length, flanked by the kitchen and dining room. Upstairs are two bedrooms with ample closet space, a bath, and a storage room over the garage. The home is bright and cheerful. Local architects and building contractors can prepare or obtain working plans and specifications for this home and others of its type.

Trend in Modern Building Is Toward Houses of One Story

New York, N. Y. — The growing number of one story houses now being built reflects changes in the living habits of the average American family.

"It's popularity is due to several factors," said Randolph Evans, who has designed hundreds of small houses. "Chief of these is probably our present greater emphasis on outdoor living, which encourages a tendency to place all rooms on the ground floor where they are within easy reach of the outdoors."

"Another factor is the increasing number of low cost houses now being built. This minimum type house, though completely up-to-date in its equipment, has fewer and smaller rooms than most more expensive houses. It then becomes more economical and convenient to group these rooms on one level."

Houses Hug the Ground. "The convenience of apartment-house living, in which all rooms are placed on one floor, has also had its influence. Finally, one story houses, because of their greater breadth in relation to their height, usually appear more attractive."

The growing use of this type house, however, brings with it several problems of design that every prospective home builder should appreciate. One of these is the added significance of the roof, which is not only brought closer to eye level, but is also greater in proportion than it is on the two story house.

"As a result, every effort should be made to make the roof appear as colorful and as graceful as possible."

"Fundamentally, the low cost one story house should be as well built and as well equipped as more expensive types, for most new conveniences add comparatively little to the cost of construction, and some such as insulation, actually cut the cost by reducing fuel bills."

The savings made possible by complete house insulation were brought out in a recent experiment by the Tennessee Valley authority, which compared the fuel costs of two identical houses—one insulated, the other uninsulated.

"The tests demonstrated," he says, "that the mineral wool in the insulated house cut its fuel bill by almost 45 per cent."

"The one story house, however, will continue to be built mostly on low cost land in those areas where land costs are high, such as in cities and some suburbs, the two story house is obviously more economical. But, if our present housing tendency of building on larger plots continues, the one story house will undoubtedly continue to grow in popularity."

Singing in Bathtub Urged as Means to Save Wear on Towels

Sing in the bathtub all you want to, you bathroom Caruso and Galli-Curci because it helps to use up energy you otherwise would expend in a too vigorous afterbath rubdown—which is likely to cost you money.

Scientists at the American Institute of Laundering today put their okeh upon bathroom modeling because, they discovered, the bathtub vocalist is less prone to overdo the rubdown.

The strong silent Tarzan or Amazon of the bathtub is the man most likely to seize a bath towel, stretch it as it should never be stretched, then seek a new vigor by a strenuous rubdown. The result is a bath towel that is ruined by having its body stretched out of shape and its threads torn.

Research at the institute has discovered that such maltreated towels with shoe wiping and razor blade cleaning as chief causes of bath towel fatalities.

Paint Is Urged for Covering Wallboards

Building experts point out that paint is the best medium for decorative finishes on composition wallboard now widely used in place of plaster. High quality oil paint is not permanently affected by dirt and grease as such stains can be removed by washing. Three coats of paint are essential on new board.

The priming coat may be omitted if original paint is still in good condition. This primer should consist of three parts by volume of soft paste white lead and four parts lead mixing or lead reducing oil. For flat finish, follow with two coats of equal parts soft paste white lead and lead mixing or lead reducing oil. For enamel finish, substitute a good, prepared enamel for flat finish coat.

Builder Should Have Chance to Make Profit

Good business calls for any person, no matter what his line of endeavor, to make a profit on his work regardless of whether he is employee or employer. And in building a home this is important.

The builder is the master craftsman under whose direction a pile of sticks and stones becomes your mansion. The general contractor takes over the entire job and lets subcontracts to carpenters, plumbers, plasterers, electricians, painters and all others having a part in building your home. This places direct responsibility in the hands of one man and he becomes your "general manager" in the job.

Your financial advisor, architect or material dealer will be glad to assist you by selecting several from whom you may choose.

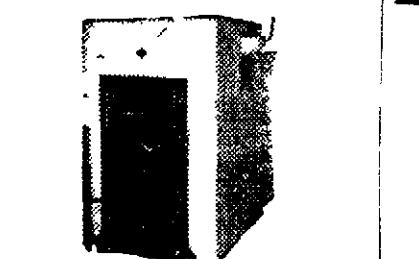

Insulate Drain Pipes To Eliminate Gurgling

The sound of waste water gurgling through the soil pipes between the partitions is objectionable to most home owners and need not be tolerated.

The noise is overcome by insulating the soil pipes with a pipe covering.

Sweating pipes in the basement sometimes prevent use of a hot space as recreation room, work shop or laundry. Cold water lines covered with nonsweat insulation will not drip. Soil pipe insulation has to be done before walls are closed and plastered, but dripping pipes are easily reached and may be corrected.

Adequate Wiring Insures Comfort

Electric Cords Dangerous As Well as Unsightly in Homes

Electric cords running in all directions from an outlet are inconvenient and they are a positive danger.

An outlet should be installed for at least every 12 feet of baseboard in a room. An outlet should be provided in each usable wall space three feet or more in length at the floor line, in every active room of the house. No point along an unbroken floor line should be more than six feet from the outlet in that wall space.

Now that electricity is supplementing other sources of light and heat, it is particularly important to plan adequate wiring for a new home.

Real electrical convenience results only when the wiring system is planned to serve the family's standard of living. This means that modern lighting facilities must be adequate for eye comfort and eye health and satisfactory in decorative effect. It also means that the many electrical appliances which the family likes to use throughout the house must find outlets conveniently; they cannot be expected to give their most efficient service if they must attempt to do their work on a diminished supply of power from an overworked lighting system.

For the efficient use of appliances, separate circuits of larger wire than supplies electricity for light are, therefore, an important detail in an adequate wiring installation. They should be run to properly located outlets in kitchen, dining room, parlor and laundry or laundry space.

A floor outlet near the fireplace in the living room could also be connected to the appliance circuit to serve an electrically equipped nook tray in the gracious modern manner.

The adequately wired home is not only more slightly, but far more livable than those which suffer from inadequate wiring.

Electric Range Takes All the Guesswork Out of Getting Meals

Grandmother had to do a lot of guessing when she cooked. She had no way of knowing exactly how hot her oven was, or whether it would stay at that temperature until her roast was done.

Because she was never certain of the temperature she had no way of knowing exactly how long food should stay in the oven. She had to stay close at hand all the time to be sure the fire neither died down nor became too hot, and be ready to take things out of the oven the instant they were done.

The electric range does away with all this. If the recipe calls for 425 degrees, the homemaker sets the oven temperature control on her range at that point—and she knows her oven will maintain that temperature as long as she wants it to.

She need not stand around and wait for cooking to be finished, because the automatic timer on her electric range shuts off the heat at the right time.

COULD YOUR HOUSE BE HAPPIER?

Many squabbles about little things are stopped when electrical conveniences have adequate wiring

By Kathleen Robertson (From McCall's Magazine)

Why do families squabble?

Some day the psychologists are going to study the reasons and we won't be a bit surprised to learn that most of them are about little things. Getting in each other's way; having to wait for each other, leaving things lying around; meal hours; buttons not sewed on—and so on and so forth.

One would think that we were still living in the dark ages, the way we forget that electricity is intended to give us those conveniences which do away with many causes of unnecessary bickering. It would be interesting to sit down with a list of a week's arguments and see how many of them could be avoided.

In too many houses, electricity is not given a chance to do its work for family comfort and peace because the wiring isn't enough or right. Adequate wiring and plenty of outlets let electricity do the things which you want done—things which cause petty headaches and heartaches so long as they remain undone.

How one house became happy is told in the "before and after" pictures. But the pictures show only a few of many ways in which adequate wiring can spread cheer. For instance, there need be no more hand-to-hand engagements with falling hatboxes, nor prolonged hunts for shoes that lurk stubbornly in pitch-black corners. A light in every closet is another item of new-found enjoyment.

Many a woman could zip through ironing in jig time if the laundry room had heavier wire and proper appliance outlets, then maybe she could get at that sewing that she's been planning for ages.

Many a house needs a light in the garage, operated on a two-way switch from either the house or the garage. All entry ways and porches should have light—pleasant for friendly callers and most unpleasant for unfriendly callers!

Transforming a house with adequate wiring is not really a major operation, if you go about it systematically.

Decide placement of (1) multiple control switches, for halls, cellar, etc.; (2) lamp outlets—at least

1 double outlet every 6 feet of wall space. (3) appliance outlets, wired with at least No. 12 wire. Consider need for heavy duty circuit in kitchen if buying electric range. (4) Discuss ideas with reliable contractor. (5) Get bids, with sketch of his proposed installation, having all switches and outlets marked and materials specified. (6) Ask local inspector to check finished work with wiring layout, as approved to see if properly done. If you can be a little luxurious, you may consider circuit breakers and pilots for appliance outlets; door switches for closets illuminated house numbers; clock hanger outlets; continuous appliance outlet strips; automatic circuit breakers.

Milk Prices are Above Year Ago

Report Increase Has Helped to Hold Up Farm Purchasing Power

Milk prices this winter have been better than a year ago, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agricultural agent. For February the average milk price in the state was given as $1.47. This is 28 cents more per 100 pounds than a year ago, and it has helped to hold up farm purchasing power, the bulletin states.

The price received for milk is the major factor in the purchasing power of Wisconsin farmers. Prices received for livestock are second in importance to milk in determining the income of farmers in the state. These prices, particularly the price of hogs, have averaged lower than in 1939. However, with the increase in the prices of milk and many other farm products, the general level of farm prices now is five percent above the 1910-14 level compared with 4 per cent below that level a year ago.

Farm purchasing power is now 15 per cent below the 1910-14 average compared with 21 per cent below that level a year ago. With a further decline in livestock prices and a lower milk price than the month before, the purchasing power of the farm dollar in February was a little below the level indicated in the January index.

The next social event on the Grange calendar is an Easter dance early in April.

Add 2 Weeds to Crop Pest List

White Cockle, Hoary Alyssum Becoming Troublesome, Bulletin Says

Two wet springs in succession again have brought weed control to the front as a major problem of many northern Wisconsin farmers, particularly those operating farms on heavy soils, a bulletin of the state department of agriculture to County Agent J. F. Magnus states.

When E. J. Delwiche, of the northern branch stations, sent a questionnaire concerning the weed menace to 100 leading farmers he was informed that on the average, weeds are reducing crop yields by 20 per cent in the northern half of the state.

In northern Wisconsin, as elsewhere in the state, quack grass and thistles are recognized as among the oldest and most persistent weed enemies. Farmers recognize that unless these weeds are very abundant, they can be kept in check by planting row crops and cultivating cleanly, using a hand hoe to get those weeds that escape the cultivator.

Among the weeds which are becoming more troublesome in the northern counties are white cockle and hoary alyssum. In fields growing row crops these weeds are not nearly as hard to control as quack or thistles, but they do real mischief in grain and hay and there is a lot of land in grain and hay in these counties. These two weeds produce such enormous quantities of seed that if they are not checked they may soon occupy the land, crowding out other crops.

Other weeds that are causing serious damage on some farms include hawkweed, snapdragon, and tickle grass.

Committee to Sponsor Horse Sale March 30

The county horse sales committee, composed of farmers and implement dealers, is making arrangements for a horse sale at Appleton in connection with the monthly fair day Saturday, March 30, according to County Agent J. F. Magnus. The committee conducted its first sale recently at Seymour.

$1.47 per 100 pounds, which is six cents below the average for January. A year ago the average price of milk in Wisconsin was $1.19 per 100 pounds. The present milk price is 16 per cent above the 1910-14 average compared with 6 per cent below that level a year ago.

FIELDS, MAE WEST IN NEW COMEDY

Selecting as their vehicle a rip-roaring comedy western, and surrounding themselves with a top-notch supporting cast, Mae West and W. C. Fields come to the screen of the Appleton Theatre on Saturday in "MY LITTLE CHICKADEE." Laughter being its main objective, the production presents the curvaceous actress and the pulp-nosed comedian in roles which are said to afford them ample opportunities to display their highly colorful and distinctive personalities to best advantage.

In the supporting cast are such well-known supporting players as Joseph Calleia, Dick Foran, Gene Austin with Candy and Coco, Anne Nagel, Donald Meek, Margaret Hamilton, Ruth Donnelly and George Moran. The other feature on this big double-bill program will be "CASTLE ON THE HUDSON," starring John Garfield, Ann Sheridan and Pat O'Brien.

Use of Certified Seed Will Avoid Ring Rot in Potatoes

A devastating new disease of potatoes called bacterial ring rot, which in some fields has caused complete loss of the crop, is threatening Wisconsin potato fields, R. E. Vaughan and J. W. Brann of the state university report in a bulletin to County Agent J. F. Magnus.

While the plant disease specialists have found no evidence that the disease lives in the soil from year to year they regard it as extremely infectious and as readily spread by shipping seed potatoes from one locality to another and by knives used in cutting seed potatoes. The only protection against it, they say, is to keep it off the farm, and the way to do this is to use only certified seed.

Plant disease specialists in all the important potato states are pooling their efforts to learn more about this new disease, and Vaughan has just received from officials of the United States Department of Agriculture a summary of findings and recommendations of the group. It has been reported locally from at least 28 states, including a few scattered locations in Wisconsin. The first was found here in 1936.

As the name implies, ring rot usually causes a yellowish ring in the potato. This discoloration begins at the stem and works all the way to the bud end. Later, however, other diseases often set in, and the whole tuber breaks down with soft rot.

In the field the symptoms of bacterial rot usually appear late in the growing season, just before digging time. The leaves droop and feel soft and thin. The plant seems to be drying up from lack of water.

Often only one stem of a plant seems to be affected.

For the farmer who buys seed stock each year the best plan is to plant only certified seed, Brann said. A list of Wisconsin certified seed growers can be secured from the county agent or from the Horticulture department, College of Agriculture, Madison.

Quality Milk Plan Will be Explained at Monroe Meeting

With three counties in the state underway with the quality improvement program, a fourth, Green county, will consider adopting it at a meeting of farmers and dairy plant operators Thursday and Friday at Monroe. The counties which have already adopted the program are Outagamie, Trempealeau and Brown.

J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent, said today that state inspectors checking sediment reports of plants from this county have reported a 20 per cent improvement.

The quality program calls for the observance of simple practices essential to the production of high quality milk and cream used in the manufacture of dairy products.

The program was explained by farm leaders last week at meetings conducted in every schoolhouse in Brown county, and through an identical procedure the previous week in Trempealeau county. A total of 2,700 persons, representing two-thirds of the farms in the county, attended the Trempealeau county meetings. Attendance at the Brown county meetings has not yet been tabulated.
